40-Year 4-H Leaders Honored At Banquet

BY LISA HAMM

LANCASTER — Ruth Nissely and Mylin Good have made a substantial investment in America's future. These Mount Joy residents have given of themselves to countless boys and girls over the years. And now it is their turn receive.

Good and Nissely were honored for serving as Lancaster County 4-H leaders at a banquet Tuesday night. Also recognized at the annual 4-H Leadership Banquet for their work were 152 other leaders; and the Elmer Boyd Memorial Leadership Award was presented to Amy Jo Strausbaugh, the county's outstanding 4-Her.

Nissely has been involved in 4-H since she was a young child when she joined along with her brothers and sisters. Her first ventures were in the sewing, babies, and chicken clubs. From there she assisted her leader and went on to team leader and local leader.

Good got his start in 4-H while he was in high school. His interest was baby beef. He also was interested in a fellow 4-H steer exhibitor. So interested in fact, that he married her.

Later, when their daughter was a 4-Her, Mylin was appointed a club leader, and that's what he's been doing ever since. "I like to work with young people and see them get a farm background," he commented.

Ruth agreed adding,"4-H is an activity where I appreciated what I had learned, and I wanted to pass that knowledge on. Working with young people has kept me young."

Nissley's first love is sewing, and it naturally is a favorite to teach. Seeing completed projects is what she likes best about teaching. "I am always thrilled to see how the girls finished their projects, even if it wasn't perfect. Perfection doesn't matter, not when they put all they have into a project."

Good enjoys working with the boys, and "I like meeting people from all walks of life," he said. "I also enjoy the social aspect: reminiscing about old times."

Such as reliving the years when he would go to New York and Colorado to buy feeder cows for which the club members drew numbers from a hat. Good feels that method of obtaining calves gave everyone an equal chance to come up with a winner. "Doing it that way, the poor boys had as much chance of winning as the rich ones," he said.

Both Good and Nissely encourage people to become 4-H leaders. "We need all the help we can get to help these children," Nissley said. "Every bit of talent that a person has is appreciated in helping the children of the future."

Ruth Nissely and Mylin Good were honored by their fellow 4-H leaders Tuesday night for 40 years of service.

Lower Prices For Dairymen Likely

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — No matter how one sizes up the confusing situation in Washington these days, the bottom line looks like lower prices for dairymen.

Whether through another assessment for promotion, an assessment to cut program costs, a cut in the support price, or, most likely, some combination of these means, dairy farmers will likely have to get by with less money for their milk in 1988.

Washington-based observers say dairy farm fortunes are hostage to two major phenomena.

One is the federal government's continued inability to balance its books. Congress has resurrected the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction process, which requires automatic cuts in spending "across the board" if Congress and the Reagan administration cannot agree on a budget that meets specified deficit goals. For fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1, $23 billion in cuts will be required in announced programs if no new taxes are approved. Agriculture's share of this is about $1.2 billion.

The other key is the seemingly inexorable increase in milk production. In August, even before the end of the whole herd buyout program, production was on the up swing again, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture figures. The rebound — nationwide, August 1987 output was one percent higher than August 1986 production — has been faster than many analysts predicted and dims hope that the dairy lobby can strike some sort of deal to avoid a 50-cent support price cut Jan. 1.

Before the current round of budget wrangling in Congress, the dairy industry was focused on what would happen Jan. 1. Under the 1985 farm bill, Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng has the authority to reduce the support price 50 cents if the department estimates the government will buy more than 5 billion pounds of surplus dairy products in 1988. With private estimates centered right around the 5 billion-pound "trigger," most observers were saying Lyng, who represents an administration that has consistently supported lowering the support ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures settled higher but closed off of daily highs on strength from rumors of major purchases of CCC stocks. Large commercials were noted buyers on the late break. Pipeline supplies continued to support the market as did stronger basis levels and higher export inspec- tions. Certificate values remain steady with redemption rates rising leading to lower PIK and ROLL profits.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans futures settled higher on strength in meal and soyoil. Aggressive commerical buying and broad-based speculative support was noted. Gains in November were limited by a weaker tone in the Gulf markets. Heavy selling was noticed as the November contract approached the $5.50 level which is expected to trigger CCC resales.

Corn That Stands Through The Fall

That corn crop you've labored over won't do you any good if the ears are lying on the ground at harvest time. But Funk's G-Hybrids will stand right through the harvest.

And they'll not only stand, they'll produce record breaking yields. With varieties like G-4027, tops in its field in New York. Or G-4446, a record yielder in Pennsylvania. Or G-4626, a standout in southern PA and Delmarva areas.

And each Funk's variety is backed by Hoffman research. We annually run more than 50 test plots to ensure that only the best yielding varieties reach your fields.

When you're looking for outstanding yields this planting season, call your local Hoffman seed representative. Or call Hoffman Seeds direct. We'll deliver a corn crop that stands through the fall.

Lancaster Farming

OPINION

The Life You Save

As the farmer lay there gasping for breath, images came to mind of two acquaintances, one dead and the other in a wheel-chair. "It's happened to me!" he thought. A screwdriver across the starter terminals had let his stalled tractor come alive again, running over him and on across the field.

Bypass starting...circumventing safe starting procedures, wiring around neutral • start switches, shorting across the starter solenoid terminals...is a major safety concern. Like tractor overturns, bypass starting can be an unnecessary cause of death or serious injury with agricultural machinery. It's not a problem unique to agriculture or to agricultural tractors. Virtually any piece of powered equipment can be bypass-started...thus endangering people.

Too often the operator stands beside the engine...in the path of the drive wheels, for example...when the bypass start is attempted. This is a dangerous practice. If the transmission has not been shifted to neutral or park, the tractor or other machine can start in gear and run away. Such a runaway can result in serious injury or death to anyone next to the machine or in its path.

Some operators...the lucky ones...have escaped unharmed because the machine...particularly a dry clutch machine..."nudged" them just as the bypass start was being attempted. And a dry clutch machine left in gear may move a little, yet not start. This is not like machines with hydraulic clutches, which may be in gear, start and not move...at least not right away. After the engine starts, hydraulic pressure begins to build up in the transmission. When the pressure is high enough to engage the transmission clutches, the machine will lurch forward (or backward, if in reverse) and run away. The delay in machine movement will end with surprising suddenness.

Manufacturers continue to develop products which surpass those of the past in many ways. In the days when engines were started with a crank, an operator could be run over by a machine started in gear. This elbow-wrenching task easily lost favor as electric starters became more common. Electric starters also made starting in gear easier. Manufacturers devised systems, such as those with neutral start switches, to prevent starting in gear. But none of them can withstand the inventive attack of someone intent on bypass starting a machine.

Manufacturers are doing their part by going forward with new designs like engagement override valves and similar devices. To prevent accidents it is also essential that operators improve in the safe use of current machinery. Owners and operators must maintain safety features in good working order and never circumvent them. You must always start the engine only from the operator's seat with the transmission in neutral or park. You must NEVER start the engine while standing on the ground. Following the machine manufacturer's instructions for safe starting will help you stay healthy and alive!

To Evaluate Farm Records

The 1987 cropping season is about over and soom it will be time to summarize your farm accounts and be reporting to the IRS. In addition to the need of good farm records for tax reporting purposes, I'd like to suggest these farm records be used for future farm planning and in making major farm decisions.

When time permits and as the outside work winds down this fall, it is a good idea to spend some time in your office and do some "pencil pushing" regarding the most profitable parts of your farming business. Your records of success or failure of the various enterprises are the best guide to future expansion or termination.

To Graze Cautiously

We receive many phone calls concerning the damages of pasturing forage crops after being frosted. All of the permanent grasses such as bluegrass, orchardgrass or bromegrass can be safely grazed at any time of the year; this is also true of any of the small grain cover crops such as rye, wheat or barley. All of these are not toxic when frozen and usually do not present any bloating problems.

However, the legumes such as clover and alfalfa should be grazed very carefully. They are not toxic after being frosted, but will cause severe bloating if consumed while the frost is on the leaves. Allow the frost to thaw, and the plants to dry off before turning in the herd or flock.

Also, any of the sudden grasses or sorghum hybrids should not be grazed for at least a week afte being frozen. Neither should the new growth, after being frozen, be consumed.

To Inspect Heating Systems

With colder weather upon us, we'll be using different types of heating units. In order to prevent the potential for fires and other problems, we suggest that all chimneys and flues be checked for cracks and places where sparks can escape.

In this part of the country, tobacco sheds have stoves to provide comfort for the winter job of stripping tobacco. Many of these have been in operation for years and may need some attention. The mortar around pipes and between bricks may have fallen out; in some cases a repainting job with mortar will make the system much safer.

Don't take chances with a faulty system; it could start a major barn fire or the fumes could cause suffocation.

To Control Mice and Rats

As the weather turns colder, mice and rats seek shelter and migrate from the outdoors to the indoors -- and they may choose your home.

When nights become chilly, mice and rats move into garages, storerooms and barns. And if there is food in the area, they're likely to set up housekeeping there until colder weather drives them into your house.

Mice can crawl through holes and cracks as small as a d ime. They can enter where pipes go through the wall. And some are so bold, they'll run through an open door whie you're entering the house.

If you find signs of mice activity, there are two god ways to get rid of them. If there are just a few mice, a trap is a good remedy. Bait the trap with bacon, peanut butter or cheese and set it near a wall so that the trigger is pointed towards the wall. If a large nuber of mice are present, then baits are more effective. The bait should be put in bait stations so that children or pets cannot get to it.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

A GOD WHO LAUGHS

October 18, 1987

Background Scripture:
Genesis 21:1-7; 22:1-19.

Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:1-8.

Our usual perception of the Old Testament patriarchs is that of grimly serious, flinty-eyed men. One does not expect and rarely finds even the slightest element of levity in their stories.

Abraham, however, is an exception to the rule, for laughter seems to play an important part in his story. You will remember that in last week's text, when God reiterated to Abraham his promise of a male heir, "Abraham fell on his face and laughed" (17:17). God's promise seemed that incredible. Later, when Sarah heard God make his promise to Abraham, she too "laughed to herself, saying, "after I have grown old, and my husband is old, shall I have pleasure?" (18:12). God, of course, heard Sarah laugh and asked Abraham: "Why did Sarah laugh...Is anything to hard for the Lord?"

"HE LAUGHS"

According to God's promise, however, Sarah, who thought herself too old and barren, did conceive and bear Abraham a son and, according to God's instruction, they named him Isaac, meaning "he laughs." (Probably the name means that, although Abraham laughed at God's promise, Isaac is the living proof of that promise. But it also might mean that God laughs at our lack of faith.)

When Isaac was born, Genesis reports Sarah's reaction: "God has made laughter for me; everyone who hears will laugh over me" (21:6). This is a merry passage, for Sarah realizes that the joke has been on her. As Sarah puts it, "Who would have said to Abraham that Sarah would suckle children? Yet I have borne him a son in his old age" (21:7).

SILLY DISBELIEF

We think of disbelief as a very serious matter in the eyes of God, but we rarely regard it as just plain ridiculous. Yet, they are this, too. It is silly for us to regard our own wisdom as superior to that of God, yet, often, that's exactly what we do. Surely God must laugh at our human pretenses and childish arrogance. When you think of it, what could be more unproariously funny than our bumbling efforts to go on our own power alone?

If we are really honest with ourselves, we will have to admit with Sarah that often the laugh is on us.

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Farm Management Services For additional market comments and trading service contact PFA Commodity Futures Service (717) 761 2740

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed higher and made new contract highs in three 1988 contracts on concerns over dry weather in major wheat area of the Pacific northwest. Support early was linked to the rally of corn and soybeans but later ideas of possible Indian interest entered the market. Nearterm resistance remains at the $3.15 level.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle and feeder cattle futures closed lower, pressured by cash connected selling. Prices were also pressured by a short term over- bought condition. Carcass and box beef trade was steady as were cash cattle leading some traders to continue their bullish outlook. The other side notices heavier out-weights and the lack of product price improvement to stage a strong rally. Feeders were pressured by lower trending cash prices and higher grains.
CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE: 10/12/87 $77 17 dn $ .13
ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady futures-steady to lower

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed lower on sharp losses in the belly pit. Numerous sell-stops were activated just before the close in Feb. bellies. Weakening fundementals include higher weights, higher slaughter and expand- ed product supplies. Harvest is causing delays in marketings complicating the problems with demand.

October 31 Deadline For Dairy Promotion Funds

Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program has issued a "last call" on applications for local promotion grants for the first half of 1988, according to PDPP Program Coordinator Lolly Long. The deadline is October 31.

Ms. Long pointed out that a two-tier funding method will be used for the first time.

Upon application, she said, a $200 grant will be made available immediately to the qualifying organizations to purchase dairy products and other supplies needed for retail sampling promotions. All other grants will be made on a 50-50 matching basis.

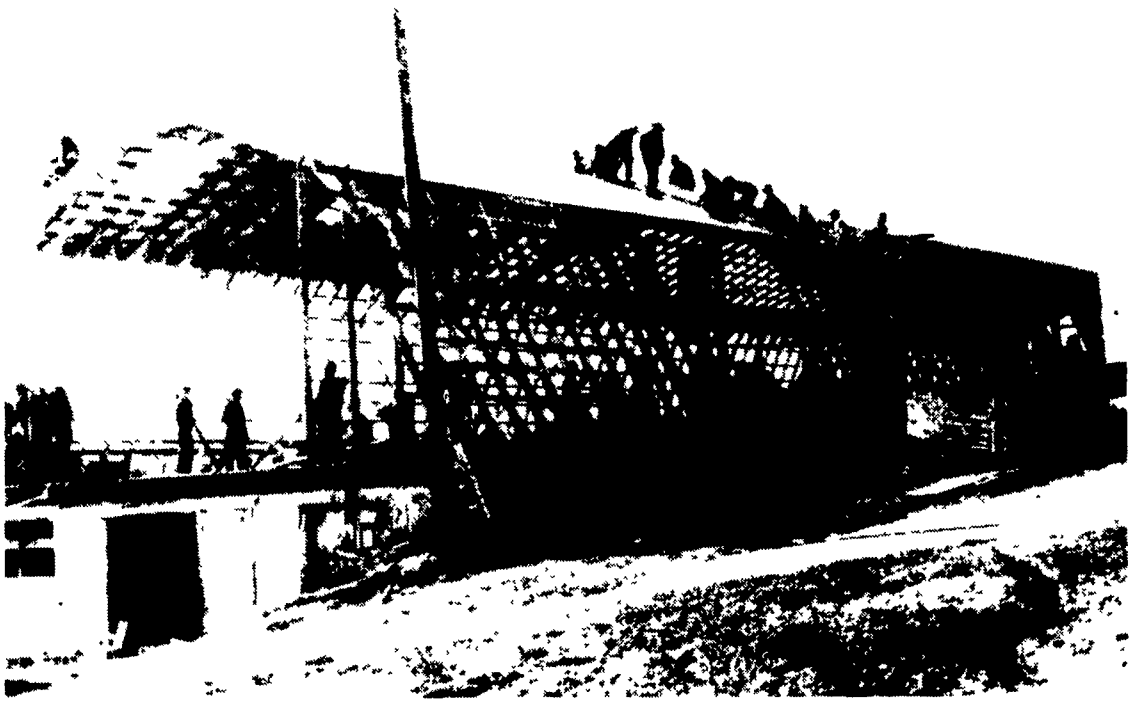
Long noted that such matching funds may be used to purchase milkshake dispensers, storage cabinets, and other equipment used to dispense or merchandise dairy products. One stipulation, however — all profits from such investments must be used for future dairy promotions.

To qualify, the local group must be a milk producer organization or a non-profit committee supervised by dairymen.

All established promotion groups have been informed by mail of the deadline and policy changes, Long revealed.

Others interested in building local milk sales are advised to telephone Ms. Long immediately at (717) 787-6903 for complete guidelines and application forms.

Over 4,000 state dairymen contribute $2,000,000 annually to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program for dairy advertising, promotion and research.



Friends and neighbors joined forces Tuesday to "raise the roof" on the barn of Charles Kreider near Mt. Joy. Kreiders' barn was destroyed by a fire in August.

State Requests Input On 23/30 Bypass

BY PAT PURCELL

GORDONVILLE — An overwhelming turnout at a meeting last month of approximately 2,000 Amish farmers in opposition to the proposed route 23/30 bypass has apparently prodded PennDot officials to take a different direction, at least in tactics.

Overpowered by the numbers, state officials are contacting bishops of the Amish community in an effort to divide and conquer, according to Richard Armstrong, of Gordonville. Armstrong has been instrumental in organizing and establishing lines of communication among those who oppose the four-lane highway which under the present plan may cut through the heartland of the Amish farms.

Armstrong and his wife Penny see the action by state officials as a deliberate ploy to divide the large, united group of opposition into smaller groups, in the effort to weaken the resistance.

Also, the state says it wants more input from all those who attended the last meeting and have sent out lengthy and complicated questionnaires. The mailings were received by most people this week, and the state has requested their return by October 23.

Armstrong has organized several workshops throughout the area to offer help to everyone in completing the form. Announcements of where and when those workshops are to be held will be posted. Scheduled for this week are: Bird-in-hand Fire Station, Monday, October 19, 7:30 and Wednesday evening, October 21,7:30 p.m. at the White Horse Fire Station, 7:30. Armstrong urges everyone to attend the meetings in order to have all the forms sent back to the state to prove to the state officials that the opposition is still strong.

Farm Truck Legislation Passed

HARRISBURG — The Senate has unanimously passed legislation (44-0) which would allow individuals owning a truck bearing a farm license plate to use the truck to take their driver's test, according to Sen.Noah W. Wenger (R-36) sponsor of the measure.

"Under present, law, farmers may license trucks used in the conduct of their farm business with a special farm truck plate," explained Wenger. "By accepting these use limitations, farmers pay a lower registration fee for the appropriate classification. However, a problem has arisen because the truck cannot be used to take a driver's test."

Wenger said in some instances, farmers use 18 wheel tractor-trucks and other trucks to take farm products to market. To drive them, farmers must be licensed under a special classification and must take a special driver's test, but farmers are being refused a driver's examination by police because the trucks do not have a regular license plate.

"Farmers have to either borrow a truck with a regular license plate or purchase an unrestricted license which could cost up to $984," Wenger said. "The statute must be amended so that a farmer does not have to violate the law or pay a substantial sum for the unrestricted license to use the vehicle to take their driver's test."

The bill now goes before the House of Representatives for consideration.

National Dairy Board Approves Ad Campaign

ARLINGTON, VA — At its September meeting in Burlington, Vermont the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board took action on several advertising campaigns financed by America's Dairy Farmers.

Cheese

The Board approved eight 15-second television commercials and eight 4-color print ads for the National roll-out of the "Don't Forget the Cheese" campaign. The campaign started Monday, September 28th on NBC's program, "Classic Concentration" at 10:30 a.m. - 11:00 a.m. Consumer's will be reminded to buy cheese 50 times during the first two weeks of the campaign with network advertising appearing on NBC, CBS and ABC. The $22-million cheese campaign is designed to motivate shoppers to purchase and use additional amounts and varieties of domestic cheese.

Butter

Two, 30-second and two, 15-second "Give 'em all a little pat of butter" commercials were approved. These new butter spots were strengthened to better communicate the message that butter has only 36-calories per pat... the same as margarine. These commercials will begin airing November 16th, following on-air testing.

Kid's Milk

Three new children's milk commercials designed to position the product as a "cool" beverage of choice were approved for production. The new children's campaign is slated to start October 24th.

Dairy Calcium

New calcium print advertisements, positioning dairy food calcium over calcium supplied by other foods were approved by the Board. Using the "Dairy Calcium, Calcium the Way Nature Intended" theme, the new ads will feature the advantages of "taste," "variety" and "choice" which dairy product supplied calcium, has over competing products. The new campaign begins February 1, 1988.

Health Professional

Advertising and direct mail campaigns targeted at health professionals including doctors, dentists and dietitians were also approved by the Board. The Board authorized expenditures of $2-million over a 16 month period for the campaigns. Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt of New York will implement the program through specialized media aimed at health professionals. The campaign will communicate the continual importance of dietary "dairy" calcium and also attempt to put the dietary "fat" issue into perspective within the various medical speciality areas.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers, was established by The Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983 to develop and administer a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education to strengthen the dairy industry position in the marketplace. This effort is financed by America's dairy farmers."

New York Farmers To Access NY Farm Net

ITHACA, N.Y. — A massive mailing to farmers in New York State in October publicized NY FarmNet, Cornell Cooperative Extension's statewide information and referral program for farm families with financial and other problems.

The mailing, sent to more than 21,000 New York farmers, consisted of a cover letter, brochure, and telephone number stick-on label explaining the services available from NY FarmNet. The brochure quotes several farm families who have been helped by the service.

More than 1,500 people have called NY FarmNet's toll-free phone line since its inception in March 1986. (The phone number is 1-800-547-FARM.) Experienced operators are ready to take calls.

Farm families in New York can turn to NY FarmNet for help with financial, legal, personal, family, and job retraining needs. FarmNet staff have developed a network of people throughout the state who respond to these needs by offering information and advice. Financial counselors are available through NY FarmNet for individualized analysis.

NY FarmNet is run by Cornell Cooperative Extension, which works closely with its county offices around the state. Funding for the program is provided by the New York State government through the Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Bedford Co. Dairy Family Named Outstanding Exhibitor For 14th Year

HARRISBURG, PA. — To a Bedford County dairy farm family, a gold watch has become almost synonymous with the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

For the 14th consecutive year, the Galen McDonald family, Imler R1, received a gold watch after being named Outstanding Exhibitor of the All-American Dairy Show. The watch award is presented annually to the outstanding exhibitor at the five-day dairy exposition by the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association.

The McDonald family's Green Slopes Guernsey herd display garnered the highest total score over a series of unannounced inspections, conducted through the show's duration, of exhibits of five or more head. Their display has also earned the Guernsey breed housekeeping award for 17 years.

Housekeeping points are awarded for cleanliness of stalls, animals, aisles and general attractiveness of display, sanitation and neatness of equipment, good milking habits, cooperativeness with management and courtesy to show visitors.

"We sweep all the time," members of the McDonald family offered as explanation for their long-running winning streak as the show's top housekeepers. Complimenting the busy brooms wielded by family members is Green Slope's attractive display featuring a barn, cow-craft accessories and antiques.

Plaques sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association went to good housekeeping winners in each of the six dairy breed categories.

E. Wayne Beshore, (right) president of the Pa. Dairymen's Association, presented good housekeeping plaques to winners in six dairy breed categories at the All-American show. (Front, from left) Alicia and Angelique McDonald, Guernsey; Peggy Benet, Jersey; Mike Creek, Ayrshire; (back, from left) Polly Ullom, Milking Shorthorn; George Edgerton, Brown Swiss; and Willis Conard, Holstein.

Alicia (center) and Angelique McDonald, representing Green Slopes Farm, Imler, accept a gold watch for their family's 14th consecutive selection as Outstanding Exhibitor at the All-American show. Making the presentation was E. Wayne Beshore, president of the Pa. Dairymen's Association, which sponsored the housekeeping awards.

Somerset County Man Selected As Livestock Association President

HARRISBURG — Thomas W. Calvert of Berlin, Somerset County, was named president of the Pennsylvania Livestock Association (PLA) during their annual meeting.

Calvert, co-chairman for the Keystone International Livestock Exposition breeding sheep show, is employed by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Soil Conservation Service as an area agronomist. Calvert specializes in pasture and grazing management, putting his methods to strong tests through his own sheep operation with demonstration grazing systems.

"The goal for the coming year will be to strengthen the association's membership," Calvert said. "The Pennsylvania Livestock Association represents the total state livestock industry. Through this structure PLA can work cooperatively with agricultural organizations in matters of mutual interest — education, promotion, research and legislation."

Also appointed were Dennis Grumbine of Lebanon as first vice-president; Tony Dobrosky of Glen Rock as second vice-president; Robert Kimble of State College as secretary; and Allan Cornman of Pine Grove as treasurer.

The Pennsylvania Livestock Association is open to any individual, corporation, partnership or business interested in the production, marketing, processing, supplying or any other practices related to the livestock industry.

The association sponsors the Penn State Judging Team, the PSU Block and Bridle Club, the Pennsylvania Meat Marketing Program, the association's food booth at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, and the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

Dairy Hall of Fame

MADISON,WIS. — Just as there is a football Hall of Fame in Ohio, there is a "dairy hall of fame" in Wisconsin. Located in Fort Atkinson, the Dairy Shrine Museum is an attraction for tourists to America's Dairyland. Visitors see a brief audio-visual exhibit of past and present dairy operations; as well as a look into the future. Other displays range from dairy artifacts to photos of past national breed champs.

The Dairy Shrine is a non-profit organization with over 11,000 members. 1987 is the 38th anniversary of Dairy Shrine. Dairy Shrine members celebrated with an annual honors and awards banquet held in conjunction with World Dairy Expo, the largest trade show for dairy farmers.

The 1987 Dairy Shrine "Guest of honor" was Dr. Robert E. Walton, president and general manager of American Breeders Service, DeForest Wis. Receiving the Distinguished Dairyman Award was John Bishop IV, a well-known Jersey breeder from Columbus, New Jersey. Also each year, several industry pioneers are honored posthumously for their contributions to the dairy industry. Portraits of the four honorees were unveiled at appropriate ceremonies at the banquet, then hung in the Shrine's permanaent home in Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. This year's Pioneers were John Erickson, Wisconsin (1868-1935); Fred Nutter, Maine (1893-1980); Anne Pickett, Wisconsin (1804-1884); and K.C. Sly, New York (1900-1986).

Sesquicentennial Time Capsule Sealed In Maryland

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Carroll Co. Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, MD — Carroll County, Maryland brought its sesquicentennial celebration to a close with the sealing of a time capsule to be opened in the year 2037. The event, held at the Farm Museum, was attended by Maryland's Governor William Donald Schaefer, who placed a photo of himself in the capsule.

The old capsule, which was reopened in March, contained newspapers from 1837, 1887 and 1937, handbills, books, photographs and letters of the time. Those items were placed in the new capsule along with presentations from groups, businesses and individuals from all over the county which represent 1987, the 150th birthday of Carroll County.

Among the items added to the time capsule were photographs of the local county fair winners, and Maryland State Fair winners, Kelly Mazur (Reserve Grand Champion Steer), and Ray Hoff (Reserve Grand Champion Hog).

Maryland county and state fair winners place their photos and ribbons in the time capsule to be opened in the year 2037.

Meat Scientist Retires

UNIVERSITY PARK — John H. Ziegler, professor of food science at Penn State, retired from the Department of Food Science with emeritus status on September 30 after 33 years of research and teaching in the College of Agriculture.

He has taught undergraduate courses in introductory animal science, livestock judging, animal breeding, sheep production, livestock slaughter laboratories, meat cutting and processing as well as upper level and graduate courses in animal sciences. Ziegler also served as coordinator of the Penn State Meats Laboratories from 1960 to 1975.

Among his early research interests were the composition of fat in red meats and the development of new lamb products. He studied how the diets of meat animals effect carcass fat and might be controlled to produce less saturated meats. He helped coordinate an annual field day in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Mushroom Growers Association, which led to a three-year USDA lamb products study. The Penn State Sensory Evaluation Lab, now housed in Borland Lab, was established during that study.

Other research interests have included working closely with Pennsylvania pork producers on carcass evaluation and product promotion; pesticide residues in meats, and meat processing and marketing. He has published widely on red meats in scientific and technical journals as well as in popular magazines. Since 1958, Ziegler has been active in the market swine and pork competitions of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

A native of Altoona, Ziegler received an associate degree in agriculture from Potomac State School of West Virginia in 1948. He received a B.S. degree in 1950, an M.S. in 1952 and a Ph.D. in 1965 in Animal Industry from Penn State.

He is a member of the American Meat Science Association, the American Registry of Certified Animal Scientists, American Society of Animal Science and the Institute of Food Technologists. He is a founder of the Penn State Stockmen's Club, an organization of friends and alumni that supports student activities at Penn State.

Order No. 4 Base Milk Price $13.03 For September

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a September 1987 base milk price of $13.03 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.40. The weighted average September price was $13.04 and the butterfat differential for the month was 16.7 cents. The base milk price was up 26 cents from August and was 10 cents higher than last September. The weighted average price was up 27 cents from August and was 13 cents higher than a year earlier. The gross value of September producer milk was $63.5 million, compared to $66.1 million a year ago.

Mr. Shine said that producer receipts totaled 488.4 million pounds during September, a decrease of 25.1 million pounds from last September, and the average daily delivery of 2,586 pounds per producer decreased 54 pounds or 2.0 percent from a year earlier. Class I producer milk totaled 275.6 million pounds and was up 14.5 million pounds or 5.6 percent from last September. Class I milk accounted for 56.42 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 50.84 percent in September 1986. Base milk accounted for 94.41 percent of total producer milk receipts in September, compared with 91.96 percent last year. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.64 percent, up from 3.61 percent last September.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 215.1 million pounds during September, an increase of 2.9 percent from a year earlier after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Ag Students Receive Scholarships

UNIVERSITY PARK — The cost of college went down this year for 190 students in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

They are recipients of nearly $225,000 in awards through the College's Scholarship and Awards program, which is supported by annual and endowed gifts from friends and alumni. The College will honor students and scholarship donors at its annual Scholarship and Awards banquet on Thurs. Oct. 22.

Dr. Gerard Hauser, director of Penn State's University Scholars Program, will address the group. Frank Cobb, a friend of the College who last year endowed a $150,000 scholarship fund for students interested in food science, will speak to the students on behalf of all donors to the program.

"We have a tremendous need for graduates who will become leaders in the science of food, agriculture and natural resources," says Dr. James H. Mortensen, associate dean for resident education. "This banquet is one way we can recognize the scholarship of our students and the generosity of our friends who support their studies."

Scholarship recipients are chosen on the basis of their academic standing, financial need and recommendations from their professors. The College administers more than 125 separate scholarship funds, for new and continuing students.

Pioneering Developer To Build Homes On Undesirable Farmland

BY PAT PURCELL

In what is being heralded as a pioneering effort by a builder and developer, Lancaster County may have what is being touted as the first residential community deliberately constructed on undesirable farmland that appears to be unsuitable for a housing complex.

In Manor Township, on route 999, just west of North Duke Street in Millersville, Forest Homes Inc., builders and E. B. Able Construction Company have joined forces to establish a 65 unit community on a site which challenges the developer with steep slopes, a ravine, natural springs and bedrock which has been measured to 32 inches below that surface as well as protruding from the ground.

"I had no idea of the steepness of the slopes you have to deal with here. I would guess the erosion if this were farmed would be near 10 tons per acre. This is not going to be easy to develop, but this is the way we need to move in order to preserve our farmland," said Amos Funk, President, of the Lancaster County Agricultural Preservation Board, at the ground breaking ceremonies held on Wedensday.

"This is a whole new approach," Funk added. "This is a pilot project. If this can be done here then it can be done anywhere in the county."

James E. Huber, Chairman of the Lancaster County Commissioners, commended the work of the Manor Township Board of Supervisors to seek waivers to accomodate the special circumstances presented by this site. And Huber challenged other county government officials to encourage developers to take this direction.

"These people are pioneers. Very few have done this in the past. This is an example of responsible, creative land use. Farmlands need not be developed. Preserving farmland should be the top priority of Lancaster County government. And we should encourage developers to do the same," said Huber.

Forest Homes Systems, Inc. of Selinsgrove is building 65 townshouses and a split-level home on the site. The model home should be open to the public before the new year. E. B. Able Construction Company of Centreville have begun work on the site.

Although the difficult construction issues inherent in this site propose a greater input in dollars and time, according to Craig L. Van Kouwenberg, Director of Marketing for the developer, the company is banking on the Lancaster Countians committment to the preservation of farmland.

Van Kouwenberg said that this is the company's first project in the county and that they want to make a good first impression. He added that they would not be making the effort if they did not think it would work.

"The site can become the most beautiful little neighborhood in Lancaster County. The very problems of construction lend such character and beauty to the site that we can have it all . . . rural atmosphere, suburban convenience, urban amenities of public water and sewer," said Van Kouwenberg.

In light of the awareness of all Lancaster Countians to preserve farmland he feels that countians will appreciate the effort his company has made.

"It is the successful marriage of two of the most prominent driving forces leading the strong, stable economic growth for which Lancaster County is famous: land development and farming," said Scott Jackson, executive vice-president of the Building Industry Association of Lancaster County.

"A new day has dawned in Lancaster County. It begins with projects such as this. It will continue as long as economic growth and expansion dictates the course for this county. It will work as long as the development interests and the interests of agriculture and all other vital elements of Lancaster's economy can work in concert to guarantee the county's rich heritage will be preserved alongside its present and future growth.

The steep slopes,a ravine and rock outcroppings may lend beauty to the homesites planned along route 999 near Millersville, but lacked beauty as tillable farmland.

Concern For Rural Clean Water Flows As Federal Funding Ebbs

BY PAT PURCELL

AKRON — "How many years will it be before we have to pay for water?" was the question James R. McMullen of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service asked of members of the Conestoga Headwaters Project of the Rural Clean Water Program on Tuesday, as they gathered for their coordinating meeting.

The CHP is one of 20 projects throughout the nation established to gather data about a growing concern, rural water quality. The CHP is located in one of the most intensively cultivated agricultural areas in Pennsylvania. As a result, nitrates and phosphorus are the pollutants which are affecting water supplies. This project was initiated to determine the effects of farming on groundwater pollution.

McMullen, Director of Conservation and Environmental Protection Division of ASCS, pointed out that groundwater contamination is surfacing in many areas of the country, not only in areas of heavy industry, but specifically in farming areas. It is of such concern nationally that Congress appropriated $50 million in 1980 and $20 million was added in 1981, to "develop and test means of controlling agricultural nonpoint source water pollution in rural areas".

"We must be able to show data of what is being done with programs being administered," McMullen said, "And it is very important to future funding."

McMullen praised the Conestoga Headwaters project as being one of the best projects in the country because of the multi-pollution causing materials involved.

"You are achieving results. You are reducing nitrates and phosphates. In 1986 you reduced the amount of nitrates in the water by 51,000 lbs. and phosphates by 39,000 lbs. You are showing results for the money that is being spent," said McMullen.

The nutrient management program, which is administered by the Cooperative Extension Service personnel is credited with accomplishing these significant reductions.

However, additional funds are not being appropriated and the $6 million slated for the RCWP have been cancelled.

"Just because there is no new funding in 1988 don't get discouraged. We do have some reserve money left," said McMullen.

However, with the cutback in appropriations funding will be tight and results of the present programs will be the key to future funds.

Amos Funk, President of Lancaster Co. Agricultural Preservation Board, praised developers at ground breaking ceremonies for utilizing undesirable farmland for a residential community and challenged other developers to follow this pioneering effort.

Drought-Relief Loans Available

The 1987 severe summer drought has had adverse affects on the crop production in the six county area serviced by the York Farm Credit Service. Farm Credit recognizes that due to the drought, many farmers will need to do additional borrowing because of reduced crop sales and additional feed purchases.

Duane G. Bosler, Executive Vice President, of the York Farm Credit Service announced that a Special Drought Loan Program with a loan rate of 7.75% will be offered for a limited time to farmers of Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, Perry, and York Counties.

"Our Board of Directors, consisting of solely farmers, understands the strain the drought puts on farmers who are already in tough economic times. While this program is not a panacea, it is being offered in an effort to help farmers work through this situation," said Mr. Bosler.

To qualify for this program, farmers need only review the effects of the drought on their 1987 crops and cash flow with a Farm Credit loan officer. Normal credit qualifications and repayment schedules will apply.

$3,000,000 has been set aside for this loan program and all farmers are encouraged to apply. Loans must be opened by December 31, 1987.

The York Farm Credit Service presently provides over $66 million in long term Land Bank loans to 1200 borrowers and $35 million in short term Production Credit Association loans to 861 borrowers in South Central Pennsylvania.

Huntingdon County Exhibitors Excel In Chianinas

HARRISBURG — Three exhibitors from Warriors Mark in Huntingdon County fared well in yesterday's open Chianina breeding cattle competition at the 31st Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

The junior champion heifer of the show, "GCR Miss Key Lite," was exhibited by Chad Kaufman. "M's Miss Snowball" earned reserve champion heifer honors for Eugene Moore, and "M's Rocky Top" was named the reserve grand champion bull for the Moving M. Farm.

Sky Meadows Farm of Annville, Lebanon County, had to be happy with their showing, as their bull, "Walco General Levi," was declared the junior champion bull and the grand champion bull of the show.

Michele Hosterman of Millheim, Centre County, captured the blue ribbon for grand champion heifer in the show with "JCE Cassandrea," winner in the senior champion heifer class.

The Chianina show was one of six beef cattle breeds judged at the Expo in the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Nearly $95,000 in premium money was up for grabs in the five-day international competition, which included swine, horse and sheep judging. The show is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Farm Show Commission.

POLLED HEREFORD SHOW UPHOLDS STANDARD

HARRISBURG — Competing for more than $10,000 in special prize money, 165 exhibitors took part in one of the largest Polled Hereford shows in the nation on Sunday at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

The American Polled Hereford Association and KILE staged a Standard of Perfection Show, one of five "super" shows authorized by the association for 1987 in the United States.

The event was dedicated to two Keystone State residents, Dr. J. Robert Brown a New Castle (LAWRENCE COUNTY) veterinarian and Roy Hunt of Portersville (BUTLER COUNTY). Both men are Polled Hereford breeders and have been active in promoting the breed in Pennsylvania.

Governor Robert P. Casey issued a proclamation welcoming the show to Pennsylvania and saluting the two men.

A Pennsylvania exhibitor, Dennis Stockdale of Dayton, ARMSTRONG COUNTY, showed the champion cow and calf of the show, "DS MS Sculptor 515," claiming the $150 premium. The reserve champion ribbon was awarded to Margaret Sheriff of Washington, CT.

Another Connecticut exhibitor, Briar Hill Farm of Sharon, showed the grand champion heifer, "W V Miss Conception," and Ace Polled Herefords of Millbrook, NY, entered the reserve grand champion named "Ace Mona Lisa." Miss Conception and Mona Lisa were the senior and junior champions, respectively.

Ace Polled Herefords also took home the blue ribbon for grand champion bull, "ACE Mohican Brooker," which was the junior champion. The reserve champion bull was the champion bull calf, "G & R AJS Raceway 1900," exhibited by G & R Polled Herefords of Courtland, Kansas.

Lower Prices For Dairymen

price, would levy the cut.

Dairy lobbyists and their allies in Congress have been floating various schemes for avoiding this possibility. In September, for instance, the directors of the National Milk Producers Federation, principal lobbyist for most of the nation's milk cooperatives, voted to support a plan that would substitute a 5- to 10-cent increase in the current 15-cent promotion assessment for the 50-cent cut Jan. 1. The action was based on a study by the Congressional Budget Office that estimated that by spending another 10 cents on promotion, farmers could boost commercial sales 800-900 million pounds in 1988.

Although Congress has resisted to date altering the major provisions of the 1985 farm bill, dairy industry supporters had hoped to pass some kind of legislation during the ongoing budget reconciliation process, in which Congress is attempting to bring spending estimates in line with budget targets.

That still may happen, but prospects appeared to be waning last week. A staffer on the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry, from which most dairy-related legislation emerges, said on Tuesday that support has declined for any plan that would delay the Jan. 1 decision.

Speaking specifically of a plan to substitute a 10-cent promotion assessment for the 50-cent price cut, the source said, "Support for this is really going to be hard to come by. Cattlemen are against it. Dairy organizations are not presenting a united front."

The entire reconciliation process is fraught with uncertainty anyway. Many observers say President Reagan will veto any legislation that includes, as reconciliation is likely to, a tax increase.

Nevertheless, Rep. James Jeffords (R-Vt.), the ranking Republican on the subcommittee, was expected to introduce a version of the plan (known as "50-10") when the subcommittee began considering money-saving proposals later in the week. Members of the Senate Agriculture Committee also will be considering this idea, according to a committee source.

What happens with reconciliation presumably will dictate what happens with Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. If, for instance, Congress achieves its deficit reduction goal in legislation signed by Reagan, there would be no need for automatic cuts. On the other hand, no agreement would spell the need for the full $23 billion reduction, or about an 8½ -percent across-the-board cut.

In that worst case, the government would have to come up with about $85 million in savings in the dairy price support program, according to figures supplied by Jeffords' office. That could be accomplished by lowering the support price, but the staffers estimate a reduction of more than $1 a hundredweight would be required. Instead, some congressmen are looking at an assessment.

Jeffords, for instance, has introduced legislation that would require an assessment to accomplish any Gramm-Rudman-Hollings adjustments to the support price program. An aide said the legislation is almost identical to a bill passed during the last round of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings action in 1986. Under that bill, which had the support of most of the industry, dairy farmers would up paying 12 cents a hundredweight from April through September to achieve a 4.3-percent budget reduction.

This time around, Jeffords staffers estimate a 5- or 6-cent assessment retroactive to Oct. 1 would supply the needed savings. Ag committees in both the House and the Senate, where Sens. Rudy Boschwitz (R-Minn.), Robert Kasten (R-Wis.) and Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) have introduced legislation similar to Jeffords', were scheduled to discuss the assessment plan last week. Aides say that, in contrast to the price-cut delay proposals, this measure has broad support and should pass.

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN — The Schuylkill Conservation District, Pottsville Kiwanis, Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, DER Bureau of Forestry, Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service will be celebrating the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution during the Farm-City Banquet on Friday, November 6, at 7 p.m. at the First U.C.C. Church in Schuylkill Haven.

Farm-City Week was organized in 1955 to "bring a better understanding between rural and urban segments of society" at a time when an ever-widening gulf separated them. Today, farm and city people are beginning to see their interdependence, recognizing their common interests and resources.

Schuylkill County's oldest and #1 industry is Agribusiness with the county's 740 farms and other agribusiness representing an annual income in excess of 48 million dollars. Farm and city residents depend upon a continuing supply of goods and services and are therefore dependent upon each other.

In 1987, our 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution, Farm City Week will strive to create a greater understanding of the problem faced by rural and urban residents alike. George Washington will be the featured speaker followed by colorful entertainment provided by the Bureau of Forestry and the ever popular appreciation exchange of gifts.

Hog Producers Need Better Records For Bigger Profit

BY PAT PURCELL

"A big mistake with hog producers is that they don't encourage genetic planning. Go home and write up a genetic program for your farm. Know what you are buying. Reproduction is the key to profit. If you have reproduction problems get them corrected now. It affects next year's profit."

That was part of the message Dr. Conrad Schmidt, a Minnesota Swine Veterinarian, had for nearly 200 hog farmers gathered at the Rothsville firehall last week at a dinner meeting arranged by Dr. Timothy Trayer.

Dr. Schmidt discussed the possible changes that may occur in the swine industry in the near future. Only the top 50 percent of the farmers in not only the swine industry but also in the dairy farming and crop farming will survive into the 21st century due to the changes from an equity based economy to a cash flow economy for these industries. If the hog farmer is to succeed, management will be the key.

Many factors other than the economy will affect the survival of the hog producer. The government is examining the environment and health of laborers in hog production. Liabilities for the after results will be in question. Schmidt urged farmers to be more conscious of the environment and predicted that in this area hog farmers will see more government interference with the hog producers. Family farmers may pay the consequence of prolonged exposure to these environments.

OSHA may impose standards. In the end, the hog producer will be responsible for laborers in the buildings and will pay for the quality of the environment in the form of more dollars in utility bills and also in the liabilities for the after effects.

"If we don't clean up our act, the government will do it for us and I don't think we want that," said Dr. Schmidt.

Paper Work--A Vital Function

Dr. Lawrence Reuff, Indiana swine veterinarian, also speaking to the group and Dr. Schmidt stressed the importance of good record keeping as a vital function of every hog producer. Both agreed that in order for the hog farmer to survive profit record keeping was essential.

"I can't impress upon you enough the importance of shuffling papers," said Dr. Reuff. "We all have a tendency to think that when you are pushing papers that you are not really working, but it is one of the most important jobs to be done. Records for reproduction, growth and finishing and not just financial records.

"What you think is the case and what the numbers show are often two different things," said Dr. Reuff. "It is an important part of your business. It is the only way to collect info to make correct decisions."

The only way to make sound evaluations and to analyze problems in all areas of hog produciton is to base decisions on a sound record keeping system. To be able to reduce losses to disease the producer has to know the frequency of disease in his herd.

In determining the proper and affordable feed mix the producer needs to calculate the money spent on additives in proportion to what is spent on the whole ration. Spend no more than eight percent of what is spent on the whole ration, according to Dr. Schmidt.

Another area of concern for the hog producer in the near future will be the production of residue free pork. The producer needs consumption of the product so the consumer needs to feel safe about buying it. Proper use of medicine is essential because even the slightest amount of residue can be detected.

Dr. Schmidt urged producers to work closely with veterinarians and extension agents to create a safe and helathy environment and to utilize the advancements made in hog production. For instance, in the very near future a diagnostic test will be available which producers can use on the farm. Dr. Schmidt urges the farmer to consult the veterinarian to confirm a diagnosis.

He also encouraged producers to put more emphasis on the sows.

"Sows are herd's disease reservoir. Protect your piglets from diseases from the sow through proper scheduling of vaccinations. That is why it is very important to keep records to be able to make disease predictions. We need good records to see the frequency of disease in the herd to learn how to prevent it. Because the more disease in a herd, the more severe the disease will be," said Dr. Schmidt.

He noted that pigs weaned at three weeks will have greater susceptibility to disease than piglets weaned at five weeks and that this pattern becomes apparent when recorded. This determines the immunity of the piglet.

A bio-technological development, Paline which breaks down fat and increases leaness and thereby increases the dressing percentage is predicted will improve gains by 10-15 percent, may be approved within the next 12 to 18 months, according to Dr. Schmidt. Schmidt warns that it is very important not to feed this to reproductive gilts and boars, because not enough is known about it yet.

Chester Mushroom Festival Is Pennsylvania's Largest

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

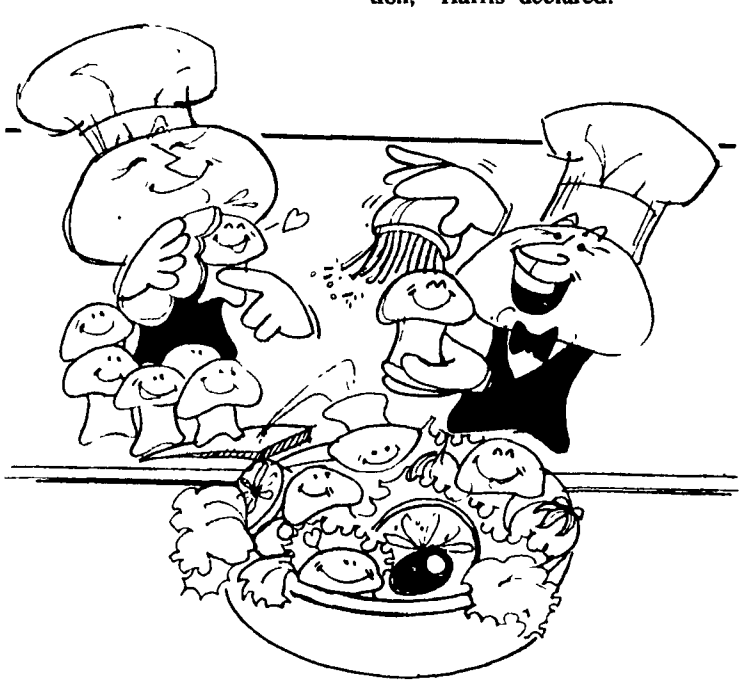
KENNETT SQUARE — The Second Annual Chester County Mushroom Festival was Pennsylvania's biggest mushroom promotional event ever held. This year Southeastern Chester County Chamber of Commerce, the American Mushroom Institute and the state Dept. of Agriculture's "Fresh from Pennsylvania Mushroom" public relations program combined forces to promote the delicate vegetable.

Chester County produces nearly 45 percent of the nation's mushrooms. More than 88,000 tons of the fungi are produced annually by 160 county growers, mainly in the Kennett Square area. The town has long called itself, "Mushroom Capital of the World".

Since its inception in Pennsylvania more than 90 years ago, the mushroom industry has "represented the best tenets of the free enterprise system," according to Charles R. Harris, executive director of the American Mushroom Institute. The commodity has received no government support.

According to Harris, mushroom cultivation came to Chester County in the 1890's. By 1910, growers were shipping mushrooms by train as far as Boston and Miami and receiving 60 cents per pound.

Harris hopes that emphasis will not be on increasing per capita consumption of the product but on improving the quality so that the consumer is willing to pay more. "Higher prices for mushrooms will reward the growers and eliminate the shibboleth that the salvation of the industry lies in the concept of increasing the per capita consumption," Harris declared.



Cartoon characters "Mushee and Fun Guy" remind consumers that for best flavor mushrooms should not be soaked in water, but wiped off with a damp cloth.

Last year, for the first time, the Pennsylvania Legislature appropriated $75,000 for mushroom promotion within the Department of Agriculture budget. "It's a self-help program," said Bill Smedley, who administers the program for the department. "Last year the industry matched it dollar for dollar. This year there's a campaign to match it."

Through the effort of Senator Noah Wenger (R-36), the mushroom promotion appropriation was raised to $100,000 in the 1987-88 General Fund budget. Wenger, who represents the portion of Chester County that includes many mushroom growers, has been an advocate of increased research and development of fresh mushrooms.

"American-cultivated mushrooms have become a very popular vegetable, but increased competition with imported mushrooms has affected Pennsylvania's mushroom sales," Wenger explained. Only four local processors are still in business. Where, 15 years ago, three-quarters of the mushrooms sold were processed, today the reverse is true; 74 percent are fresh and 26 percent are processed.

"We have a public relations campaign for mushrooms throughout the northeast corridor of the United States," Smedley stated. Harris said, "This program's a team effort by AMI (American Mushroom Institute), the State Department of Agriculture and Ketchum Public Relations of Pittsburgh."

This year's campaign has come in three phases, beginning last Valentine's Day with "Mushrooms are for Lovers". During the summer vacation season, the theme was "Mushrooms are for Movers". The autumn and holiday phase will be "Mushrooms are for Celebrations."

The cartoon characters, Mushee and Fun-Guy, will be used throughout the "Celebrations" phase to remind consumers that mushrooms should not be soaked in water but rather wiped off with a damp cloth or slightly brushed before use. Mushee and Fun-guy were first used to invite television and radio reporters, as well as newspaper food editors, to the Second Annual Mushroom Festival in Kennett Square.

Farm Philosophy

By Newton Bair

The Trash Dump

There were two trash heaps on the farm. One was very convenient to the house, just beyond the old woodshed in a grove of brambles and scrub oak, where a deep gully provided sufficient cover and obscurity from the back porch. "Out of sight-out of mind", as Mama used to say. That one was only for the every day refuse that would quickly decompose. The other one was a sink hole in a remote part of the woodlot, far from the farm buildings. Only the more bulky and less bio-degradable trash ended up there. The stuff that, long afterward, we often regret having pitched.

Human progress demands that some items be periodically replaced. It's the natural thing to do, when wear and tear and time makes an item obsolete. Papa didn't bother to trade in the Jenny Lind when he bought his first Model-T Ford. It was hauled to the "dump", and forgotten. When he bought the second Fliver, the first one sat behind the barn until a junk dealer bought the motor and frame for scrap. The rusted body was loaded on the two-horse wagon and hauled off to join the defunct buggy.

So it was with the gaudy and too-large picture frames, the sauer-kraut crocks, the old kerosene lanters and other "attica obscura". We can also include the once prized leather driving harness, and the old one-hole corn sheller, and hundreds of other outdated, but still useable trivia. They've cluttered the attic and barn floor long enough, - let's load 'em up and haul 'em to the dump! Even their replacements may have already joined them in that deep gully back in the woods. No matter, something better, newer, more modern, is available.

"Planned obsolesence" is a term applied to today's cars, TV's, and routine appliances. Changes in body design, shape, color and decor have little to do with functional qualities. The old one does everything that a brand new model will do, but we trade-in and update anyway, simply to please ourselves and stay even with Brother Jones.

Unfortunately, most of the stuff that we hauled to the dump will have lost it's value as a collectors item by the time an Archeologist digs it up. Rotting wood, rusting iron, and broken glass are pretty hard to resurrect. But the evidence buried in that old sinkhole could reveal a lot about the people who owned it, and the times in which they lived.

Wooden wheels, banded with hand wrought iron tires worn thin by the gravelly road. The wooden Hounds that broke when Papa turned the six-horse team too short with a heavy load on the hay ladders. The old hand cranked windmill that we used to clean the seed wheat. The double-tub wash machine that was replaced with an electric Maytag. The chopper-box, scalding trough, and cedar tripods and hand-carved gambrels, all were hauled to their final resting place on the dump.

A few pieces of hand-wrought iron have managed to avoid the dump. A rough-lock, hitch pin, and the strongbox, have survived from the old Conestoga wagon we used long ago. Some fancy hooks, a barn door latch, a beautiful shutter hook, hand-wrought bells, open-links, steelyards, "snell hooks", a pair of brass knobbed hames, and a host of beautiful but utilitarian trivia now grace our basement wall. They survive as memoirs of a useful craft, only now appreciated as works of art.

The dark recesses of attic and cellar are the temporary limbo for things too good for the dump, and too bad for public display. It is often left to the next generation to rescue and love your junque.

Flea Markets, museums, and Antique collectors are our modern trash dumps. Nothing is completely worthless these days. If it is over fifty years old, put a price tag on it and have a yard sale! Meanwhile, I think I'll visit that old dump. It may have some pleasant memories, even if there aren't any treasures to be found.

Maryland Egg Council Awards Banquet

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

Westminster, MD. — More than two hundred representatives of poultry and egg agri-business flocked to the twentieth annual banquet of the Maryland Egg Council on October 9. The gala event, with the theme, "October Is Egg Month," served as a forum for presentation of awards and the annual/report.

During 1987, the Maryland Egg Council sponsored various promotional activities, with an "emphasis on education." One of the highlights of the promotional activities was the "Great Eggs-Pectations" recipe contest. Open to Maryland residents, the contest solicited egg recipes in youth and adult categories. Eric Marder of Randallstown captured first place in the youth division with "Eric's Breakfast Bonanza." The winning adult recipe was submitted by Patricia Green of Frederick.

Members of the Council recognized Dr. Edward Mallison, Extension Veterinarian, University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, for his research in the areas of avian influenza and salmonella. Dr. Mallison was presented with the Herbert M. Becherman, Friend of the Industry Award.

In Maryland, Dr. Mallison has instituted several new diagnostic and educational programs that are now being used or studied for adoption in other states and countries. These include flock profiling, Mid-Atlantic States Cooperative Extension poultry health and management, cage bird improvement plan, and an abstracting service for poultry managers and veterinarians.

Featured speaker of the evening was Ohio farm wife and columnist, Pat Leimbach. Lauded as the "Erma Bombeck of the country life," she is author of three books that share a light-hearted look at being a farm wife. Her dynamic presentation of "old farm wives' tales" made the evening "eggs-citing."

Open House At Delaware Valley College

Drink Skim Milk For Healthy Heart

UNIVERSITY PARK — For people concerned about cholesterol and heart disease, the latest advice may sound surprising -- drink more milk. A Penn State study has found that drinking skim milk may lower blood cholesterol levels in some people.

Volunteers in the cholesterol study drank a quart of skim milk each day for eight weeks, but made no other conscious changes in their diets or activities. For many of them, the end result was lower blood cholesterol levels, according to Gerry Buonopane, a doctoral candidate in the College of Agriculture's food science department. He completed the study earlier this year with the late Robert McCarthy, who was a professor of food science, and Arun Kilara, associate professor of food science.

"Some people will respond and some will not," Buonopane says. A high level of cholesterol in the blood is a primary cause of heart disease, along with high blood pressure.

Buonopane believes drinking milk lowers levels of cholesterol in the blood because of two compounds found in milk -- orotic acid and an as-yet-unidentified second factor -- that inhibit the body's own production of cholesterol. The body needs cholesterol for its most basic functions, including cell structure, and manufactures cholesterol in the liver to make up the difference between what it needs and what is taken in through diet.

"The body's cholesterol synthesis pathway has a feedback mechanism," Buonopane says. "If we take in more cholesterol in our diet it manufactures less, to keep cholesterol at a certain level. Some people's bodies may be set at a higher level, or may not respond as much to the feedback, so that no matter how much cholesterol is in their diet, they end up with the same amount in their bodies. These people may be more likely to be affected by the inhibitors in milk."

Of the 82 volunteers, only 39 were found in Penn State's tests to have levels of 190 mg. per deciliter (mg/dl) or above when the test began. A cholesterol level of 200 to 230 mg/dl may present an increased risk of heart disease; the average American adult has a blood cholesterol level of 215 mg/dl. Eighteen of the volunteers were part of a control group that did not drink additional milk.

The 39 volunteers who had higher blood cholesterol levels to begin with showed the greatest decrease in the course of the study. They went from an average level of 233 to 217 mg/dl, a significant decrease, Buonopane says. The entire last group average dropped from 202 to 190 mg/dl. However, some individuals showed more marked decreases than others, and a few even increased their blood cholesterol levels moderately.

Many of the volunteers in the study also had a drop in blood pressure, with those who started with lower cholesterol levels experiencing the greatest drop in blood pressure, Buonopane says. He believes there may be more people in the low-cholesterol group who are sensitive to the effects of calcium on blood pressure. With additional milk in their diet, the volunteers consumed more calcium, as well as potassium, also known to help regulate blood pressure.

The volunteers gained no weight over the course of the study, although they took in slightly more calories than before by drinking the skim milk.

Penn State asked for volunteers who thought they had a problem with high cholesterol, but on running highly accurate cholesterol tests, found that many of them did not have high levels. The discrepancies were probably caused by the sometimes inaccurate tests commonly used to determine cholesterol levels, Buonopane says. People who think they may have a problem should have at least two separate tests to reduce the problem of inaccurate results, he says.

While other studies have looked at the effects of milk on cholesterol levels, Penn State's is the first to look at older adults as well as young, and to use sophisticated gas chromatography procedures to avoid common problems in determining cholesterol levels, Buonopane says. It was also a very practical study, with participants making no changes in their lifestyles or diets other than increasing milk consumption.

The research was funded by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

houses and met many of the growers. They helped judge the Fifth Annual Mushroom Cook-off Contest at Kennett Place Restaurant, lunched at Longwood Gardens and attended the Mushroom Symposium with an "all-mushrooms" dinner at Longwood Inn.

Peter Skiados, owner of the inn, explained that the symposium was "to promote theoretical and practical knowledge of mushrooms in the gourmet cooking that's raging throughout the United States". Chefs Ki Ho Kim of the inn and Jack Czarnecki of Joe's Restaurant, Reading, demonstrated the preparation of mushroom dishes. Czarnecki spoke on wild mushrooms. Penn State Professor Emeritus Morris Schroeder told of exotic mushroom cultivation in America and Harris used "the great American mushroom" for his topic.

New York Beef Cattlemen's Association Tele Auction

CANANDAIGUA, New York — The bidding will be by telephone and from the floor at the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association second annual Tele-Auction Oct. 30 at the Finger Lakes Livestock Exchange here.

More than 1,000 head of health managed feeder cattle have been consigned to this direct marketing program. Coordinator Lee Kraszewski of Corning said more than 500 steer calves, 300 heifer calves and 250 yearlings are expected to be sold at the Tele-Auction which will begin promptly at 7 p.m. Oct. 30.

The bulk of the feeder cattle in the Tele-Auction have been consigned by beef producers west of Route 81 but all sections of the state are represented. Many of the cattle are crossbred.

All of the feeder cattle have had to meet health management requirements including vaccinations as recommended by the New York Veterinary Association and the Bovine Practioners Association for acceptance in this Tele-Auction. Response following the 1986 Tele-Auction showed buyer satisfaction because these health management requirements minimized any health problems when the cattle went into the feedlot. This acceptance by buyers has resulted in much interest in advance of the Oct. 30 Tele-Auction.

All of the feeder cattle consigned to the Tele-Auction will be weighed and graded according to USDA standards at the sale barn and then penned in uniform lots. The grading and sorting will be under the supervision of Dennis Widga of the USDA and Peter Comerford of the State Ag & Markets Department. "Skip" Bevin and Wilson Hall will also be assisting the Cattlemen's Sale committee with the grading, sorting, and many other details of the Tele-Auction. Buyers will be able to preview the sale cattle from 3-7 p.m. Oct. 30.

Buyers have been given the option of bidding over the telephone as each lot is described or of being in the audience and making bids in person. The Mid-Atlantic Market Association communication system will be used for the Tele-Auction and the telephone bidding.

Beef producers who are not consignors are encouraged to attend the Tele-Auction to learn more about this alternative marketing program sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association.

There were 1,200 head of feeder cattle in the first Tele-Auction in 1986 purchased by buyers from five states. "The large numbers of uniform health managed cattle attracted the larger order buyers and enhanced both price and demand. We expect even better results this year," said Kraszewski.

The New York Beef Cattlemen's Association recently received an Ag & Markets grant of $10,000 to expand the Tele/Direct Market program with emphasis on obtaining feedlot and carcass data to return to the producer. This data will also be incorporated into the existing Herd Test Performance Program.

Working closely with the Cattlemen in all aspects of the marketing program are Cornell University and N.Y. Ag & Markets. More information may be obtained from Lee Kraszewski, RD1, Box 120, Corning, N.Y. 14830. 607-732-8619.

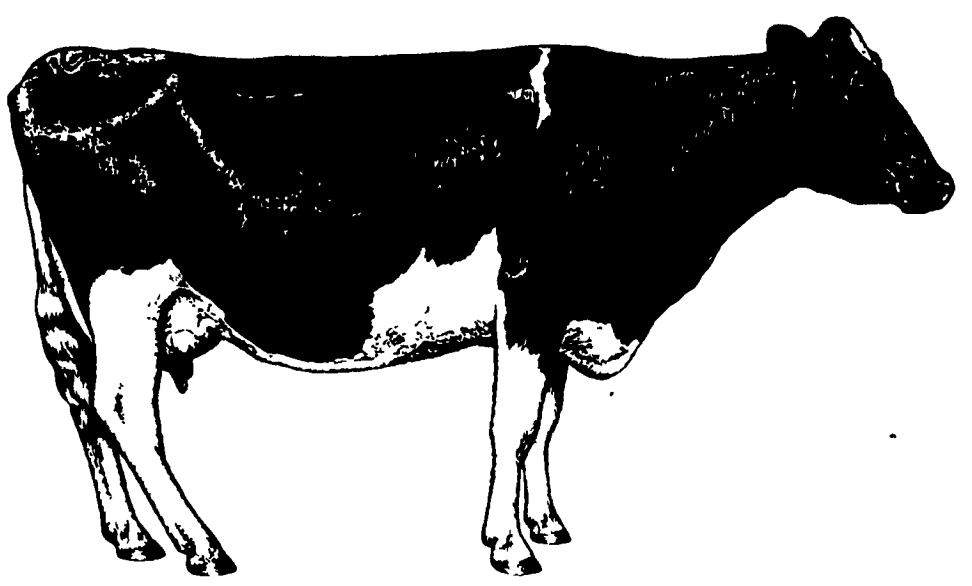
Task Force To Study Environmental Impact Of Mushroom Industry

The American Mushroom Institute (AMI) announced today that a special task force has been established to deal with environmental matters related to surface water problems in the Chester County area. Members are Michael Pia, President, AMI, Dr. Paul Wuest, Department of Plant Pathology, Penn State University, University Park, Pa.; Charles C. Brosius, Chairman, AMI Research Committee; Dr. Kenneth Lomax, Department of Agricultural Engineering, University of Delaware, Newark, De. and Charles Harris, Executive Director, AMI.

The task force will seek final approval from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) for the publication issued in February 1984 entitled, "Best Practices For Environmental Protection in the Mushroom Farm Community." This was prepared by a coalition of mushroom growers, county and state officials with support from the Chester County Commissioners. It was in production for four years and represents the best thinking of growers and governmental officials from county, state and federal levels relative to acceptable practices. With approval from commonwealth officials, it will be required reading for those involved in the mushroom industry.

Also, the task force will seek funds from selected governmental agencies, universities and foundations for ecological studies that will supplement current studies underway in the southern Chester County water shed. It will seek to establish a closer working liason with commonwealth officials and lay organizations, in Pennsylvania and Delaware, interested in maintaining clean streams.

"The mushroom industry has a sincere interest in good farm practices which will serve to prevent possible pollution of local streams. We are pleased to be able to join other groups in their efforts to maintain clean water supplies before they flow into Delaware," Michael Pia said today.



VITAMIN E

Recent Ohio Research indicates that the increased incidence of mastitis and retained placentas is caused by inadequate levels of Vitamin E in Dairy Cow Rations This is prevalent in the Selenium-Deficient Northeast. As a result, Agway immediately increased Vitamin E levels in all formula feeds and mineral premixes.

Other feed companies will probably follow suit. Shouldn't you be using FEED FROM THE LEADER?

Pennsylvania DHIA Expands Offerings

The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association recently introduced a new testing program to the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania, the Sample Analysis Program. The introduction of this testing plan brings the total number of testing plans offered by Pa. DHIA to sixteen. The Sample Analysis Program is a break from the "traditional" types of testing plans in that it is for sample analysis only, and no processed report is returned to the dairyman.

The Sample Analysis Program requires no supervisor labor or county involvement, and therefore reduces the cost of the program to laboratory services only. Dairymen enrolled in the program sign a contract with the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association which specifies which analyses they are interested in, the approximate number of samples to be sent in each time, and the approximate interval between samplings. When samples are submitted for testing, the raw data results and a new "testing kit" are sent back to the dairyman.

The program is designed to meet the needs of dairy farmers who may already have a management system in operation on their farm, but would like fat%, protein%, or somatic cell count to supplement the information. Additionally, a dairyman could send in samples for a particular part of the herd, without sending in samples on animals he is not interested in testing. Dairymen participating in the Sample Analysis Program must supply their own meters or other sampling device. Analyses offered include:

fat % and protein % = 0.35 per sample somatic cell count = $0.35 per sample fat%, pro% & SCC = $0.45 per sample

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

— A 23-year dream has come true from Dr. Howard A. Milo, director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, State Department of Agriculture.

This month Dr. Milo signed the final papers to designate Pennsylvania as completely tested under the brucellosis eradication program. His next goal — by March 1, 1958 — is to receive U.S. Department of Agriculture certification as a brucellosis-free State.

— Fred Humbert, Jr., a 20-year old Fulton County young man who earned more than $5,000 in labor income during the past four years with on-farm projects, has been named the northeast's FFA Poultry Boy of the Year."

— Winter feed supplies for cattle on Pennsylvania farms are expected to be short as a result of below normal corn and hay production in southern and central counties, according to the State Department of Agriculture.

— Since corn will be scarce in Chester County, County Agent Robert A. Powers, Jr., suggests dairymen consider using more barley in grain mixtures for dairy cattle. Barley prices are favorable in most sections and considerable amounts can usually be purchased, even in areas where little or no barley is grown.

— Apples and cheese, both in such plentiful supply on markets this fall, make good company as snacks, or for desserts.

There's that traditional team of apple pie with cheese, of course. An easy, novel way to vary it is by serving the pie hot from the oven with melted cheese over the top crust. Here's how: after the pie is baked, lay thin slices of cheese or grated cheese over the top, and put in a very moderate oven (325 degrees) until the cheese is melted.

— For the second consecutive year, Martin Witman, R1 Marietta, won the level land plowing contest held in conjunction with the Mt. Joy Fair. Second was Mrs. Raymond E. Miller, R1 Denver.

— A new chick hatchery — to be known as Babcock Hatchery, Lancaster County branch — will be opened to the public Oct. 23-26 at R3 Lititz, according to Bruce Babcock, owner and operator.

Foraging Around

By Dr. John E. Baylor
Director of Market Development
Beachley-Hardy Seed Company

Matching Forage Crops to Soil and Use

Most perennial cool season legumes and grasses, when properly fertilized and managed, can be used successfully for hay, silage or pasture. Some species are, however, as you already know, more sensitive than others to soil acidity, marginal drainage, low fertility and intensive cutting or pasture management. Likewise, as we discussed in other columns, species differ in their seed characteristics and seedling emergence, early seedling vigor and general ability to compete during the establishment year. All of these factors must be considered when selecting species or mixtures for a particular site or use.

Tolerance to Poor Drainage

Legumes and grasses vary in their tolerance to soil depth and drainage. Yet we frequently stretch a point and attempt to establish a specie on a soil where it is not suited. While the following chart isn't perfect, it will give you an idea as to how several species compare in their tolerance of soil drainage.

Tolerates Moderately Poor Drainage	Tolerates Slightly Poor Drainage	Very Sensitive To Off Drainage
Birdsfoot Trefoil	Red Clover	Alfalfa
Ladino Clover	Kentucky Bluegrass	Crownvetch
Alsike Clover	Perennial Ryegrass	Bromegrass
Reed Canarygrass	Orchardgrass
Tall Fescue	Timothy
Switchgrass	Brassica Sp.
Big Bluestem	Sudangrass

Of course, species such as Birdsfoot Trefoil and Reed Canarygrass also grow well on depth, well-drained soils. But you're stretching your luck when you try to move a specie such as alfalfa down the drainage scale.

Acid Sensitivity

Forages can also be grouped according to their tolerance to soil acidity.

Tolerates Moderate Acidity (pH 5.5 to 6.0)	Tolerates Slight Acidity (pH 6.0 to 6.5)	Very Sensitive (pH 6.5 to 7.0)
Birdsfoot Trefoil	Red Clover	Alfalfa
Reed Canarygrass	Alsike Clover	Sweet Clover
Tall Fescue	Ladino Clover	Barley
Redtop	Timothy
Bentgrass	Bromegrass
Sudangrass	Orchardgrass
Millet	Kentucky Bluegrass
Rye, Oats	Perennial Ryegrass
	Corn
	Wheat

Again you can successfully move a specie up the scale, i.e. from moderate acidity to slight acidity or above. In fact most forage species grow best when the soil pH is 6.5 or above. But you're gambling if you try to establish alfalfa or sweet clover, for example, on a soil high in acidity (pH 6.0 or below).

Hay or Pasture?

The expected yield and stand life for the intended use may be another consideration. For example, most perennial legume and grass species will produce highest yields and persist longer under a silage or hay management system, or if used for pasture under a system of rotational or more intensive grazing rather than continuous grazing.

Finally, when selecting forage species you should consider the suitability of the species to the animal enterprise. Dairy cattle, for example, have higher forage quality and intake requirements than do beef cows or sheep. Therefore, highly palatable and digestible species are generally more important in dairy forage systems than in forage systems for beef or sheep. It has also been shown that under pasture conditions sheep can graze more closely than cattle, and, thus, if allowed to overgraze can cause more damage to upright growing grasses and legumes.

I've prepared a little report on adaptation and use of various species grown for forage in the northeast.

If you'd like a copy drop me a line at P.O. Box 336, Camp Hill, PA 17011.

Next month we'll take a detailed look at forage mixtures.

Commonwealth Adds 29 Farm Families To Century Farms Programs

HARRISBURG — Twenty-nine farm families in the Commonwealth have been designated as owners of official Pennsylvania Century Farms during the third quarter of 1987, bringing the state's total to 1,167.

"The Century Farms Program helps publicize the strengths and durability of farm families who have contributed so much to our Commonwealth's economic and agricultural heritage. Our 58,000 farm families produce more than $3.2 billion annually in farm products and help keep agriculture Pennsylvania's number one industry," said State Agriculture Secretary Boyd Wolff.

To qualify as a Pennsylvania Century Farm, a farm must be owned by the same family for at least 100 consecutive years and a family member must currently live on the farm. The farm must contain at least ten acres of the original holding. The program has been coordinated by the Agriculture Department since its inception ten years ago.

Applications can be obtained by calling toll-free 1-800-AG-PENNA or by writing to: Century Farms, Press Office, Pa. Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

The oldest farm recognized during the quarter is owned by Laura Debner Gilbert and her brother Daniel Debner of Charleroi. They have uncovered a very colorful history of their farm, which was patented sometime before 1760 by their ancestor William Winnett.

Mr. Winnett was apparently kidnapped in England and brought to the American colonies, where he was bound until the age of 21. He then took a patent for 1,000 acres of land in Fallowfield Township and married England native Sally Strange; their first of 12 children, William Jr. was born on the farm in 1761. Winnett farmed his homestead and became a barrel maker to support his large family.

Two natural farm springs, the only ones in the region, run off and create wetlands conducive to wildlife. The Audubon Society has banded many species of birds on the Debner Farm and 10,000 blue spruce trees have been planted as part of an erosion conservation plan. The family has artifacts which indicate their farm springs were used by Indians, in addition to family stories about Indians coming to the farm to trade their tobacco. One man, reportedly caught cheating at cards, was hung from an old oak tree.

The latest crop of Pennsylvania Century Farms, along with the total number that have been recognized in those counties, includes:

Philosophy, Trivia, Folklore . . . Read Baer's Almanac

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — Now in its 163rd year, Baer's Agricultural Almanac is a Lancaster institution, the only almanac still published in Pennsylvania and among the oldest continuously published almanacs in the country.

According to Editor Gerald S. Lestz, there are only about a dozen true farmer's almanacs published in the United States, although in the 1800's literally every town boasted one or more almanacs.

Lestz explains, "In Pennsylvania German homes they had the Bible and the Almanac. The almanacs were good, clean, family reading material. They antedated all farm publications as well as the United States Department of Agriculture. People relied on them for weather and farming information."

Almanacs were also popular to publish, according to Lestz, because they were "relatively easy to produce and could be published once a year."

In addition to detailed information about the weather, planting information, astronomical tables and monthly lore, the almanac is chuck full of useful facts, quotes and reference material. The 1988 version has stories on the anniversary of the Blizzards of 1888 in New York and Nebraska, and on the 50th anniversary of Orson Welles' famous "War of the Wrolds" radio broadcast. Lestz says, "We are big on trivia and folklore."

Next year is Leap Year, and Bear's Almanac offers this advice, offering the parenthetical information "what every girl should know:

L et every maiden recognize
E xciting chances are at hand
A nd if you're wise and roll your eyes
P osthaste you'll wear a wedding band.
Y our right to close Love's final link
E xtends entire Leap Year through
A lthough it's best to make him think
R epeatedly, HE's asking YOU."

There is an editor's note, acknowledging that this was reprinted from the 1956 edition, but that it is still appropriate in 1988.

In a box near the front of the publication is the following note to readers: "This is a real Almanac, not a reproduction. In a day when imitations and copies of old things prevail, the real thing is hard to find. This is guaranteed to be an original issue of the 1988 edition of Baer's Agricultural Almanac. Beware of imitations!"

Little has changed over the 163 years of publication for Baer's Almanac. Indeed, Lestz says, "I have to keep before me the fact that it is available to everyone." He says he never uses jokes with double meanings or questionable material, since it is still widely used as a family publication. He states, "We use only old jokes which have stood the test of time."

Only partially joking, Lestz says, "There is something for everybody in the almanac and everybody should have one in every room in the house."

Lestz says, "Now we have more emphasis on gardening. There is a gardening explosion in the United States." to capitalize on the growing interest in home gardening, Lestz relies heavily on various associations of farm and garden suppliers to provide him with up-to-date information, and "changes in fashion" in gardening. Currently, he explains, "Tropical plants are in fashion."

He states, "The every-growing ranks of gardeners are made up of men, women and children who are of superior intelligence. They find true satisfaction as well as pleasure in growing flowers and vegetables, and their range of interests is as broad as the horizon."

Not surprisingly, he adds, "Tomatoes are the number one 'vegetables' to grow." With his tongue firmly in cheek he says that most Lancaster countians simply buy their tomato plants, plant them, and then "climb up to the balcony to pick the tomatoes off the vine."

He obtains garden information from a wide variety of sources, but his primary consultant is his wife, Margaret Gordon Dana, a well-known artist, and enthusiastic gardener. Lestz notes, "I write about it and she does it. She is an active gardener." He frequently uses his wife to check his written material before publishing it. She grew up on a ranch in Montana, and studied "a lot of botany in college."

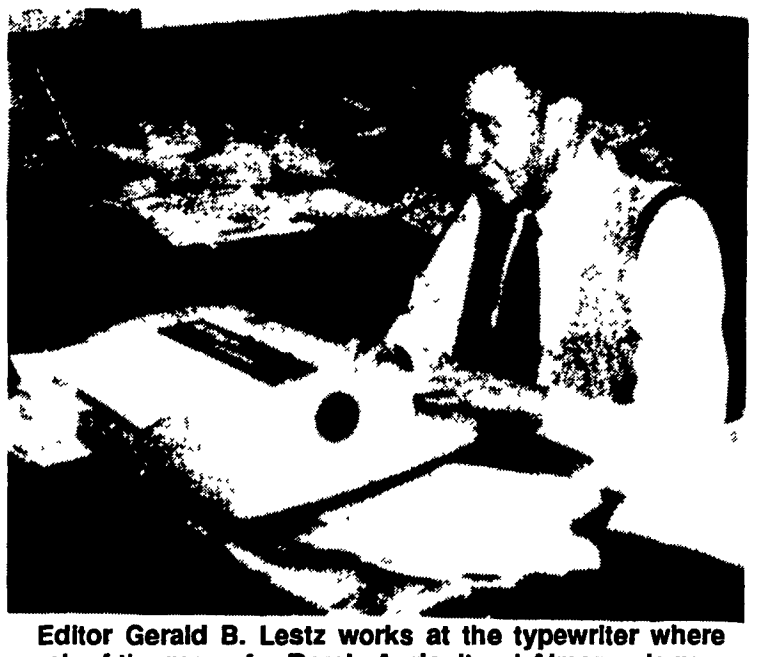
Lestz makes it clear that he always includes "some information specifically for farmers." On the cover it states that the almanac is "a useful guide and entertaining companion for farmer, suburbanite and city-dweller." And Lestz says, "I am trying to attract interest among younger people. We have readers from all walks of life."

He calls the almanac a "modest" one, adding that he has a number of very faithful readers. Indeed, he gets lots and lots of letters, many of which he opens himself. He often gets suggestions of what to include in the almanac, usually in the form of a complaint that something is missing. He said that Ascension Day had not been listed in the last few years, and he heard from many readers about it. He noted that Ascension Day is a very important holiday for plain sects, adding that they believe if they sow on Ascension Day lightning will strike their barn. The omission has been corrected in the 1988 edition.

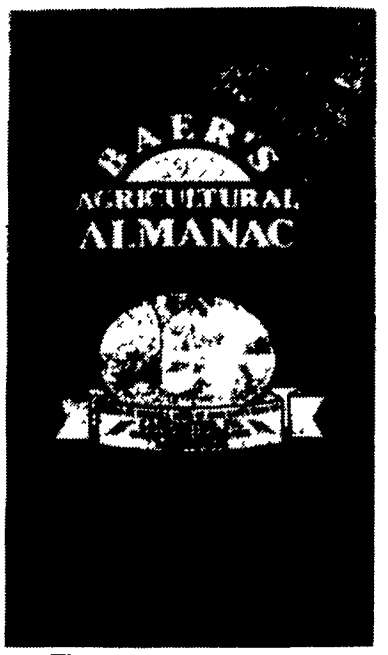
One faithful reader wrote from Wisconsin to request a copy of the 1988 edition and to say, "I use it whenever a Doctor's appointment is scheduled." In a postscript, this correspondent adds, "The "Almanac" is a delight." A Pennsylvania wrote, "I got an almanac for at least 35 years already - wouldn't be without it."

The 1988 edition has a print order for 55,000, which is 5,000 more than last year, though not as many as in their highest years. With 95 pages, Lestz says the almanac is "bigger than ever."

The almanac enjoys a national circulation, though it is most widely read in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. It is available by mail order for those who have difficulty finding it. Lestz explains that the circulation area reflects the popularity of the publication under the first publisher, John Baer, who was a native of Lancaster County and "a leading printer to the Mennonites." The almanac, Lestz says, "was very popular among the Pennsylvania Dutch and among the plain sects." It was these plain sects who took the almanac with them as they established settlements in Ohio and Indiana.



Editor Gerald B. Lestz works at the typewriter where much of the prose for Baer's Agricultural Almanac is produced. Next year will mark 40 years at the helm of the publication for Lestz, who is proud of the almanac's position as the only one published in Pennsylvania.



The cover of Baer's Agricultural Almanac is easily recognizable because only the color and the date changes from year to year.

Although it was an English language publication, Lestz says the original almanacs were also published in German until 1917, during World War I, when everything German fell into disfavor.

This year's almanac features original cartoons and Pennsylvania German weather sayings, with a translation into English. These cartoons were used courtesy of Pennsylvania Folklife magazine.

As with any forklore, this almanac contains some contradictions. One saying, attributed to the Massachusetts area, states, "The 12 days at Christmas make the almanac for the year - that is, each of the 12 days denotes what the weather will be like in the corresponding month in the next year."

On the following page, one of the Pennsylvania German cartoons state, "As the weather is the first 12 days of January, so it will be the following 12 months."

Another interesting item from the "weatherlore" section states: "When a cow tries to scratch its ear, it means a shower is very near' when it thumps its ribs with its tail, look out for thunder, lightning and hail." This is attributed to New Jersey.

Lestz tells of a local high school student who "compared our forecasts with the actual weather. He found we were right about 85 percent of the time. I think that's pretty good." But he is also quick to tell of the time he and his wife scheduled a party in 1972 on the day that Agnes hit and their basement had Conestoga River water to its celing. Lestz says cheerily, "Sometimes we're wrong, but we admit it. We have to be the first to admit it."

Oh well, as Lestz says, "If you don't like our weather, try our recipes." There are at least four pages of recipes each year, and this year the recipes feature rhubarb, okra, herbs and non-alcoholic punches.

He plans to continue to publish the almanac, saying, "I enjoy the knowledge that I am assembling something which will be read and considered useful. I try to make each almanac individual and interesting."

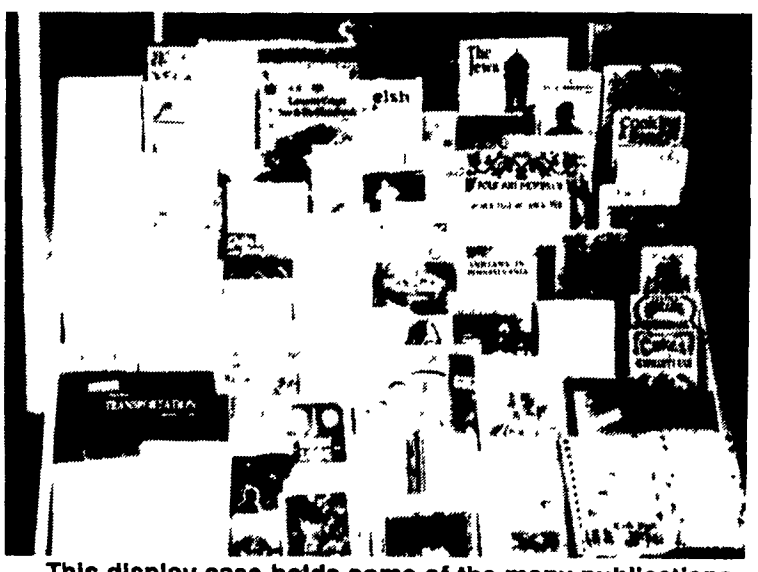
He is already deeply involved in the 1989 almanac, a year which will bring many anniversaries. He states, "As I read everything, I ask myself how I can use it. Is there suitable information here for an article?" The 1989 almanac will be ready for sale in July, making it one of the earliest available.

A special feature of the almanacs is an effort to use good, old art. A collector of lithographs and engravings of Lancaster County, Lestz tries to use attractive art throughout the publication.

Although it will be his 40th year as editor, Lestz says he has never considered changing the almanac's name. "Baer's name is well enscounced, even among our competition."

Whether its planting tips, weather predictions, poetry, philosophy, trivia or folklore, Baer's Almanac continues its tradition of "good, clean family reading material."

Collecting lithographs and engravings of early Lancaster County is one of Gerald Lestz's hobbies, and some of his art is displayed on the walls of his office.



This display case holds some of the many publications available through John Baers Sons of Lancaster County. They offer a wide variety of publications of local interest.

WARM YOUR WORLD WITH COLOR

If you are planning to paint your home this fall, let color help you conserve energy and feel warmer during the coming winter months.

Interior ceiling and walls should be painted in light colors for energy conservation. These colors reflect light so that less artificial lighting is needed. The amount of light reflected by various colors varies considerably. White reflects eighty percent of the light in a given space, while dark green reflects no more than nine percent. Some fashionable colors, listed in order of their usefulness as light reflectors, are white, pale ivory, peachy beige, lemon yellow, buff, peach, pale green, pale blue, rose and dark green. Glossy paint finishes reflect more light than flat finishes.

Psychological warmth can be added to a home by certain colors. Reds, oranges and yellows make a room warmer looking. Rooms dominated by blues, greens and violets will seem cooler.

Another way to add warmth is through the use of decorative accessories. Use accent colors of red, yellow and orange in fabrics, pillows, artwork and other furnishings. Textured materials as opposed to shiny ones also lend a warmer touch.

Once paint colors have been selected that coordinate with room accessories, it is time to prepare for the painting project. Assemble all the items necessary to complete the job. They should include the following: stepladder, paint, applicators (rollers, brushes, pads), dropcloths, screwdriver (to remove door knobs, switchplates and wall hooks), masking tape to edge areas you do not want to paint, paint thinner or turpentine (for cleaning up when using oil-based paint).

Before painting, walls should be carefully cleaned. Paint does not adhere well to a dirty surface. Walls should be washed with an all-purpose detergent starting from the bottom up. While the natural tendency is to start at the top and work down, this sequence allows water to run down over soil, creating stubborn and difficult to remove streaks. These streaks are much easier to remove from areas still damp from washing. Surfaces should be completely rinsed and allowed to dry before painting.

Any cracks and nail holes should be patched with spackling before walls are painted. Glossy surfaces need to be dulled because it is difficult to achieve good adhesion over old enamel coatings. A surface can be dulled by sanding or applying a deglosser otherwise known as "liquid sandpaper."

KEEP THOSE APPLIANCE USE AND CARE BOOKS

You may not think of those use and care books that come with home appliances as valuable reference works, but they are. Use and care books can save you time, money and aggravation.

A clearly written, well-organized use and care book can help you select the appliance in the first place because it gives you information about what the appliance will and will not do.

They are essential for learning how to operate the appliance properly and efficiently and most of them explain safety or energy saving features in detail.

A good use and care book will tell you how to maintain the appliance, and it should contain a checklist that you can use to diagnose and possibly handle simple problems before you call for service.

This is extremely important since in-home repair service is expensive. No one wants to have a serviceman come to their home simply to throw a switch on the circuit breaker or plug in an electric cord that has come loose.

If you do need service, the book should tell you where to get it. In some cases it will contain the warranty.

To gain the most satisfaction from a new appliance, you should carefully read the use and care book and become familiar with its contents. Store the information where it will be easy to find and use. Consider establishing a notebook or special file just for the use and care information on all your appliances. If there is a special place for them, they will be there when you need them.

How To Win A Recipe Contest

HARRISBURG — All it takes is 15 minutes to win the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's low fat, low calorie dairy recipe contest, according to Promotion Coordinator Donna Verner. October 31 is the deadline for the statewide contest.

Co-sponsors are the Penn State's Family Living Extension and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Food professionals and employees of sponsoring groups can not participate in the contest, but Verner timed herself just to see how tough it might be.

"It was easier than I thought," Verner says. "Biggest job for me was finding my favorite recipe."

To keep it simple, she notes, entries have been limited to main dishes. At least one Real low-fat dairy product must be featured.

Grand prize is $1,000. Other awards range from $100 for second place, $50 for third to $25 for four runner-ups.

Verner says contestants may submit up to five recipes but awards will be limited to one per household. All entries become property of the sponsors.

For added glamour a cookoff is scheduled January 11 for the seven finalists who will be announced November 30.

Judging will be based on effective use of lowfat dairy products, taste and visual appeal, originality and creativity, in addition to ease of preparation and nutritional quality.

State exact amount of each ingredient in the order that it is used. No brand names or imitation dairy products should be specified.

Include approximate number of servings, and preparation time.

Name the recipe. "This is important. It helps sell the recipe," Verner notes.

"Now take a minute to check entry, making sure you include your name, address and telephone number," she advises.

Mail entry to "Make It With Milk," Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Youth For America

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

YORK SPRINGS — "4-H For Youth For America" was the theme of the Adams County Leaders Banquet held recently at the York Springs Firehall. The event is held annually and this year recognized 195 volunteer leaders who work with over 500 4-H youth in Adams County.

Keeping with the theme of the evening, the guest speakers were the 12 Adams County exchangees who spent three weeks this past summer in Ireland. A lively question and answer period followed a slide presentation by Jeanne Smith, one of the exchangees.

A number of special recognition awards were also presented. The "Partners in 4-H Recognition" award was presented this year to the Gettysburg Lions Club. Each year the Adams County 4-H program recognizes an organization or individual who has made a significant and long-term contribution to the 4-H program. The Gettysburg Lions Club has faithfully supported the program through Club sales and with continued financial support. Richard Waybright, Mason-Dixon Farms and a member of the Gettysburg Lions Club, was on hand to accept the award on the Club's behalf.

All the leaders received recognition with 29 individuals receiving their first year leader pins. Special pins and plaques were given to individuals completing their fifth, tenth, fifteenth, twentieth, and twenty-fifth years as a leader. Those with more than twenty-five years of service included the following: Helen Rex, 27 years, Mel Durboraw, 28 years, Thomas Murren, 39 years, and Teresa Murren, 42 years.

Several 4-H members were also recognized for their completion of Teen Leader Project. Those completing Unit I were: Amy Brodbeck, Larry Feeser, Jr., Diane Joiner, Tanya Petry, Daniel Grim, and Melanie Kuntz; Unit II: Jenny Otto, Tara Petry, and Kathleen Grim; and Unit III: Chris Todt, Tad Kuntz, David Smith, and Karl Tyson.

Ron Hoffman, Treasurer of the 4-H Board of Directors, gave the Annual Report. Noting that much of the board's work is in public relations, Hoffman reported that they are presently working on a 4-H video for use in the schools and for presentation to civic clubs. Two other committees recently established by the board are now setting goals and looking for input. These include a Club Task Force and a Resource Development Committee. Newly elected 4-H Board of Directors are Brenda Weaver, Nadine Stock, and Donna Livelsberger.

Cooking The Healthy Way With Diabetic Recipes

In the past, people felt diabetic recipes were only for those with low or high blood sugar. The person who followed a sugar-free diet received a lot of sympathy from those who dined on sweets.

Times have changed. Now, out of their own free choice, diet and health conscious people chose sugar-free recipes over those loaded with fat and sugar. And many proponents of diabetic recipes don't feel they are missing good-tasting food.

If you are skeptical of sugar-free desserts, don't remain in doubt. Try the recipes submitted from readers in several eastern states. From the comments they have included with the recipes, I believe you'll be in for a tasty surprise.

Sugar-free Tips

Wilma Wenger, Womelsdorf, suggested an idea for canning fruits without sugar. Put ¼ teaspoon ascorbic acid (vitamin C) on top of fruit in jars and fill with water.

Naomi Blank, Kinzers, said a pinch of salt will counteract the bitter aftertaste of an excessive amount of sugar substitute.

1 cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour

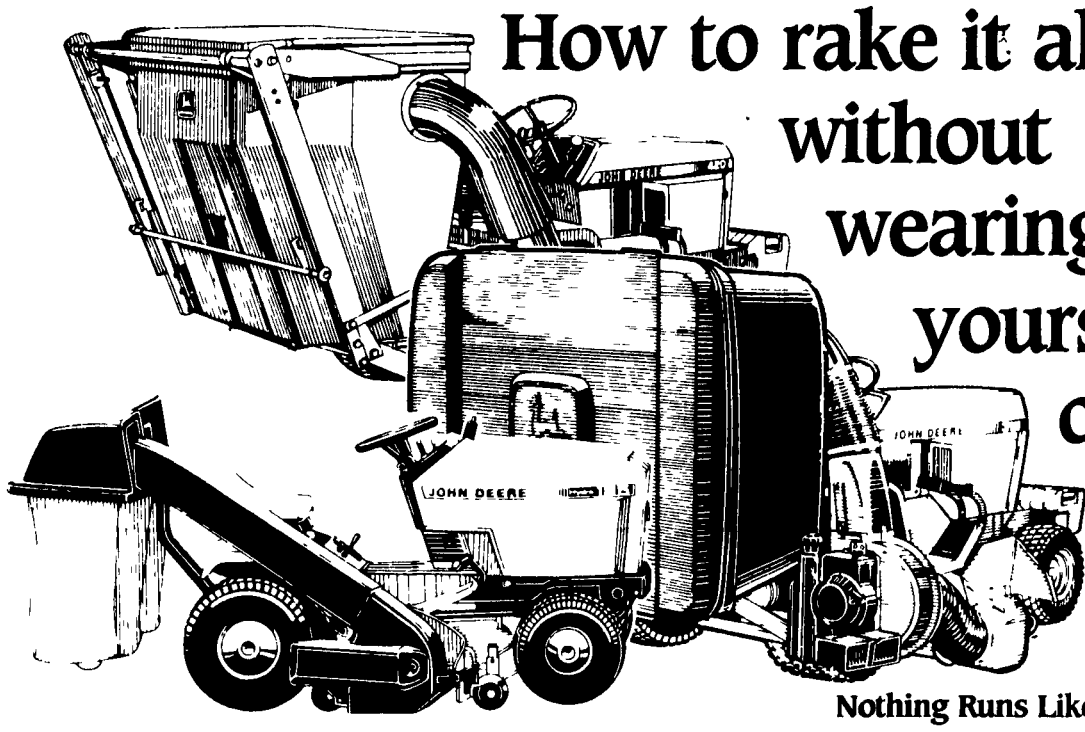
How to rake it all in, without wearing yourself out.



Nothing Runs Like a Deere®

Grass clippings are bad enough, but the leaves? It's just getting to be too much? And there's no need to rake and bag the stuff by hand.

Now John Deere makes lawn cleanup easy. With a full line of material collection systems matched to John Deere riding mowers and tractors.

These systems come in a variety of combinations. Choose a twin-hamper 6½-bushel system for riding mowers, lawn tractors and 200 and 300 Series Lawn and Garden Tractors. Or the 6½-bushel Power Flow unit for tractors with 38-, 46- or 50- inch mowers. Or the new 3-bag Power Pak unit for 300 and 400 Series Tractors with 46-, 50- or 60-inch mowers. Big cleanup jobs demand big artillery. And John Deere's got it in pairs for 300 and 400 Series Tractors. The Tilt Dump and the Hydraulic Dump Systems, which are now engine-powered rather than PTO-driven.

When the 13-bushel hoppers are full, both models let you dispose of the material right from the driver's seat. No ropes to untie...no collection bags to unfasten or unzip.

Don't wear yourself out behind a rake. Get help from the number one name on lawns, John Deere. Come on in.

5 packages bread cubes
4 bunches cooking celery
4 small onions
1 stick butter
6 chicken legs and thighs, cut-up without skin
Broth from cooking the chicken
4 cups mashed potatoes
10 eggs

Potato Filling

½ loaf stale bread, cubed
¼ cup celery, chopped
⅛ chopped onion
¼ cup butter
1¼ cup mashed potatoes
3 eggs, beaten
2½ cups milk
1 tablespoon saffron, optional
Salt and pepper to taste.

Simmer celery and onion in butter until soft. Beat eggs. Mix all ingredients together. Put in greased casserole. Bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour. Serves 8. Note: You can interchange bread for more potatoes. The more potatoes used, the less it rises. Yellow food coloring can be used to give it a golden color and it is less expensive than saffron.

Animal Rightists Eager To Uncage Birds

ILLINOIS — Let there be no question, animal rightists speak loud and in large numbers when they attempt to influence the general public. Zealous efforts include recommendations like their simple steps to alleviate suffering to birds bred to lay. That is, boycott factory farmed eggs and sharply reduce or eliminate eggs from the diet. Brad Miller, director of the Humane Farming Association, speaks for a large and ambitious group when he says that despite the political power already established in agribusiness, something CAN be done to change the way laying hens are treated. First, establish widespread awareness and concern about this issue to the public. Then, he says, "legislation will follow."

Miller recently authored a section in "The Animals' Agenda" (a magazine committed to inspiring deep regard for, and greater activism on behalf of, animals and nature). The September issue featured front cover publicity and the headline "Eggribusiness — Cracking the shell on egg factories." Opening to page four, the theme begins. An advertisement on behalf of the Humane Farming Association solicits donations to assist in the national campaign to "end the horrors of factory egg production." Several articles fill additional pages of the publication . . . each a plea to ban battery caging. In "The Violence in the Egg Carton," Miller takes the reader through the life journey of egg-laying chickens. The article, filled with superflous adjectives, explains how Miller came to realize in his investigations that laying hens were not just kept in cages, they were kept in hell.

FARM BUREAU DOCUMENTARY TELLS OUR SIDE OF THE STORY: It was at a routine meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation that the issue surfaced. Misinformation of egg production practices had been circulating and some sort of action needed to be taken. The result: a 15-minute mini-documentary, "The Business of Laying Eggs."

Designed to inform the public about modern egg production (and in response to the animal welfare situation), the straight forward piece explains, in simple terms, the egg industry as it exists in the U.S. today. Mike Orso of AFBF serves as producer/writer of the video which features producers, researchers and other poultry experts. The video will be used for TV and radio but can also be useful in meetings, in classrooms and in other educational situations. Copies can be obtained by contacting the American Farm Bureau Broadcast Services Department, 225 Touhy Avenue, Park Ridge, Illinois, 60068. Copies are free to schools, colleges and universities. Rates for others are $15 for a ½ inch VHS copy, $25 for a ¾ inch copy.

Cheese production in the U.S. during 1986 was 5.21 billion pounds. Cheddar led all varieties with 43 percent of production, followed by Mozzarella with 24 percent. Of the 50 states, Wisconsin led with 35 percent of production followed by Minnesota (12 percent) and New York (9 percent).

Kids Have Fun With Woolly Sheep

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MILTON GROVE (Lancaster County) — If you have attended sheep shows during Lancaster County's Fair season, you probably saw Lorie and Joelle Boll with their hampshire and suffolk sheep.

Nine-year-old Lorie won the reserve champion market lamb at the Lampeter Fair and her thirteen-year-old sister Joelle placed first in Junior fitting and showmanship.

The sisters say it is exciting to win trophies and ribbons with their sheep, but they admit preparing their sheep for the shows involves some hard work.

At first the sheep act wild because they are scared of the girls. Lorie and Joelle make friends with the sheep by petting the woolly lambs while they are eating. The sheep must be fed twice a day.

"But you must be careful you don't overfeed them," Joelle warned. Usually their dad feeds the sheep so they don't gobble down too much food and get tummy aches.

If you go to sheep shows, you will notice how the sheep allow their owners to lead them around with halters. But it isn't always like that.

Joelle said, "The first time you put a halter on sheep, they fight and buck."

Joelle's daddy learned a trick that can easily teach the sheep to stop fighting the halter. After he puts the halters on the sheep, he ties the halter to the back of his tractor and takes them for a walk. They soon realize the tractor is stronger than they are so they stop fighting and quietly follow the tractor. After that, they allow the halters to be placed on their heads and they walk with the girls.

Lorie said, "It is easier to walk them when they are hungry because they think they are goiong to get a treat."

You would like Lorie's sheep named Skeeter because he pulls Lorie on her bike so she doesn't have to pedal in the long lane that leads to their house.

Two days before the show, the girls help their dad wash their sheep by squirting water from the hose on them and sudsing them with Ivory soap. Then they put the sheep on a special table called a fitting and blocking stand. The sheep's neck is tied to the stand while their thick wool is cut with a clippers. Then, the girl's dad takes a shears and blends in the marks left by the clippers. The girls cord the sheep's hair by using a prickly brush that pulls the curls out of the sheep wool so their hair lays smooth and silky across their body.

The sheep are just like children because Lorie said, "They don't like to have their hair pulled while combing."

After the sheep have a bath and a hair cut, the girls put blankets on their sheep to keep them clean. They want their sheep ot look their very best so they wash the sheep's ears with cotton balls dipped in alcohol. The sheep don't like that either.

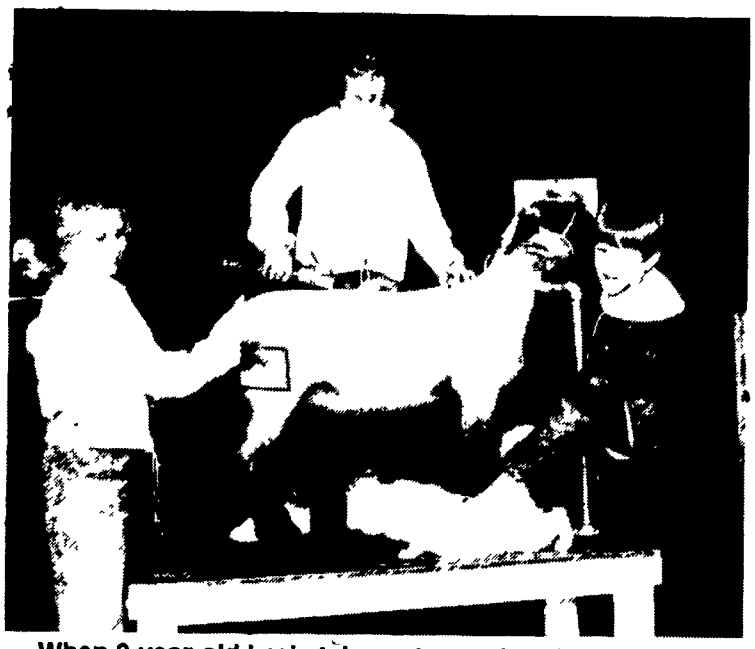
The best thing about having sheep is showing them, Lorie said. "But sometimes they step on my toes."

The girls live with their parents, Jay and Lois Boll, on their Milton Grove farm. Their seven-year-old brother Rodney likes to play in the creek that runs through their fields. On weekends, all the children help their parents gather eggs from their 30,000 chickens. The girls don't like the chickens they said because, "They stink."

Lorie said, "I have five rabbits, but I like my sheep best because rabbits just sit there; you can't walk them around."

If you would like to own sheep, the girls suggest you join a 4-H club that teaches you how to raise sheep. That is where the girls and their parents learned how to care for the sheep and win ribbons by showing them.

Joelle, left, Lorie and Rodney work together to pack the eggs that their 30,000 chickens lay.



When 9-year-old Lorie takes a try at shearing her sheep even their white fluffy cat wants to get into the action. From left, Joelle, Lorie and Rodney.

Lorie likes her sheep to pull her bicycle so she doesn't need to pedal.

Do You Know?

When you buy a major appliance at a department store, the sales person may offer to sell you a service contract. According to the terms of this contract, you pay a flat fee, which guarantees free service for a period of time after the warranty expires.

Is the contract really worth buying? One study shows that most appliances -- if they fail at all -- usually fail during the breaking-in period, which is covered by a warranty. So consumers usually know if they have purchased a faulty appliance before the warranty period is over.

The probability of failure of a two-year old appliance is very low. And the older the appliance, the more the service contract will cost.

If you are needing some inspiration. Dennis Mellott will give you ideas for your home that will draw attention to your uniqueness and give you a feeling of accomplishment. These "do-able" suggestions will start at the front entrance with an unusual door arrangement and easy-to-assemble topiaries, then move into living areas with suggestions for foyer, dining table, coffee table. Put a special face on your home for the holidays. (Presented on Wednesday evening and each day).

10:00 a.m.- "Are You a Holiday 'Magician'?"- Letie Schadler, Extension Home Economist. Managing your time and energy can be a special challenge at holiday time. Planning is the key. You and your family decide what kind of holiday you want and can manage in terms of time, energy, dollars, emotions and even calories and nutrition. Then share the joy of making it happen. (Easier said than done sometimes!). Learn ideas for modifying recipes for better nutrition, plan ahead techniques for entertaining, easy cooking dishes that allow the "cook" to be part of the celebration, too. We'll weigh the choices of "new and different" and "old fashioned" traditions in the kitchen and out. (Presented on Wednesday evening and each day).

These are keepsake gifts that become part of her friends and family tradition. She will show you how easy it is to create unique fabric items and how easy it is to machine applique with your sewing machine. She will also be demonstrating during lunchtime so you can get an up-close look. (Presented on Thursday evening and each day).

11:30 a.m.- "Stenciling for the Holidays!"- Christenna Stamm, Craft Enthusiast, Lebanon. Christenna has been making creative ornaments for 12 years. You've been seeing her work in our ornament displays for several years. This year she shows you how to stencil...what equipment to use, what to stencil on. She'll show us stencils on wood, paper, fabric and baskets. Leave your own mark on Christmas gifts. You'll have an opportunity to try it yourself during lunch if you want to try stenciling. (Presented on Wednesday evening and each day).

11:45-1:15 p.m.- Lunch. During the lunch period you will also be able to observe Lilly Hershey and Lisa Ignastosky wiring pine cone wreaths; the Flower Club members making ribbon bows (also for sale); Lebanon Quilt Guild members demonstrating quilt projects. When cooking with cheese, heat just until melted for best results. Add cheese in small pieces for quicker, even melting, and keep the heat low. When making cheese sauce, add the cheese at the last minute and heat just long enough to let it blend with other ingredients.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It seems as though each season brings its own type of work. Just now I'm putting some 50 new houseplants in plastic pots, clay pots and even tin cans. Those that need dry soil go into the clay pots as they don't retain moisture.

Walnuts, walnuts everywhere. So far I've picked up about six bushel and loads are still laying around. If anyone is willing to pick them up they may have them. A very kind, older gentleman from Morgantown cracked a lot of them for me last year.

This summer our aluminum boat disappeared from behind our barn where it was parked with some farm machinery. When we discovered that it was missing, we felt that we would never see it again. But my husband walked the banks of the Conestoga and finally found it, minus the two oars, about a mile from home. Apparently some young boys, who were in our meadow, needed transportation to the other side of the river and took it.

This past weekend I drove to see our daughter, Cindy, who lives in Tunkhannock. Now this three hour drive is nothing for her but to me, driving alone, it was a long journey. The next weekend she plans to drive, alone, to a wedding in Maine and doesn't seem concerned about the very long trip.

One evening, while visiting her, I went with her to an Antique Show where she played her flute in a musical ensemble. The next day we drove to Binghamton, N.Y., where we shopped for a dress for me to wear to my son's wedding in Chicago in November. Some of the newer styles remind me of the clothing my mother and great aunt wore long, long ago-- lace collars and all. We finally found one which I would call "quietly elegant" as it is a pale gray. Shopping is not my thing!

Family Proves Farm Ownership Possible Despite Obstacles

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LITITZ — Robert and Lois Fahnestock's picturesque farm sits on a hill overlooking the Manheim valley. With 102-acres that includes a 1,000-head pig operation and eight acres of orchard, it's a farm many people would be proud to own.

The Fahnestocks are especially appreciative of owning it. "Lots of people say it's impossible to buy a farm if you don't have a relative to inherit one or help you out. But," Bob said, "It can be done. We did it."

His wife Lois has laughing dark eyes and a warmth that makes strangers feels as if they've known her for years. She shared, "Even before we married, we knew we wanted to have our own farm, but sometimes we weren't sure we ever would. Then when we bought it and things went wrong, we weren't sure we could keep it."

When they first married, Bob worked as a hired man for a farmer. Later, they rented a farm and then they farmed on the half.

Lois said, "For 11 years, we had a dairy where we always did the milking ourselves. Not once did we have a hired man do it, even for a weekend. We knew that if we wanted to buy our own farm; we needed to save wherever we could."

"We did without a lot of things," Bob said. They remember times like the week they had only $6 left until the next paycheck two weeks away. And the times Lois took in ironing and sold produce from their garden to buy the necessities.

In November 1976, the Fahnestock's purchased their present farm. Because they were currently farming in Landisville, they decided to rent the house for several months and farm both places. In April 1977, their tenant's son accidentally lit a fire that burned down the barn. It was a total loss and a tremendous financial setback to the Fahnestocks who had it insured for $50,000, but valued at $72,000.

"We had intended to update the insurance, but we were so busy we didn't take the time," Bob recalled. Not only did they lose the barn but also the contents of the barn where they had stocked a complete supply of uninsured fertilizer.

The fire completely changed the Fahnestock's plans. They decided to build both farrowing and finishing pig houses on the hill using money that they received by selling their dairy herd, which were penned at the Landisville farm.

"For one year, we had no income," Fahnestock said. "Our cows were sold, we didn't have any livestock and crops weren't in yet." It was during a recession, money was tight, farm prices kept going up.

The family's youngest son David helps shell walnuts.

"We couldn't have kept it without the help of friends, " Fahnestock admitted. He recalled one Sunday morning when a fellow church member handed him $100 and said, "Stick it in your pocket.' It was things like that and people we didn't even know that helped clean up after the fire that kept us going," Bob said.

Ken Burkhart, a young fellow and former neighbor, helped build the pig houses. Bob's brother also helped build and did all the electrical work. The Fahnestocks say, "We can never adequately repay neighbors and fellow church members who helped to rebuild the barn, but we can help others."

A few years after the farrowing and finishing houses were built, pseudorabies infiltrated the area. Bob said, "Over a two-year period we lost $35,000-$50,000."

But those tough times only make the Fahnestocks who have five children: Valerie, 22; Wanda, 20; Keith, 18; Lisa, 15; and David, 8; more appreciative of what they have today.

Bob advises potential farmers, "Don't farm for the money, but farm because you want to do it. Anyone who thinks he's going to make a lot of money in farming, better forget it."

Bob added, "If I wanted to make lots of money, I wouldn't be farming. Lois was trained as a medical secretary and I as an accountant. We'd be making more money, but we like farming best."

The Fahnestocks see themselves as innovative farmers. Bob said, "The way we do things isn't the most popular. We don't have big, fancy equipment. But," Bob maintains, "We don't need it. They don't have anything better on the market than a feed scoop and two carts and it costs much less than automatic feeders." He joked, "It's better than machinery because if the electric goes off, you can still feed the pigs."

They grind and mix their own feed for the 1,600-1,800 pigs they sell each year. The feed bins are gravity operated. They've begun digging a pond which they plan to use for trickle irrigation in their orchard. In addition, they have a windmill that pumps the water for their pig operation.

"When some people buy a farm, they change everything right away. We didn't. We bought what we could and improvised until we could buy more. If we don't have the money, we don't spend it," Bob said. "We live the way we'd like to see our country run — by living within our own income."

Bob doesn't view gradual changes as a hardship. Goals give them something to look forward to and a feeling of accomplishment after they achieve their goal.

Bob himself designed a gravity-flow manure system that doesn't use pumps. Bob explained that ever since high school he had the idea in his head to build his present operation. Their farmland is terraced and ideally suited for the gravity-flow manure system that Bob designed and built. The finishing and farrowing house have stainless-steel slides encased in plexiglass that they open about once a month to allow the manure to run out into the manure pond in front of the building.

"Once a year, we have three or four trucks come and spread the manure on our land. They can do it in one day. Then we chisel it into the fields. It's an efficent way of doing things."

Bob looked thoughtful as he said, "I guess you could say I'm not the average farmer." He paused, then looked up, and said, "I believe our most important crop is our children."

With that perspective in mind, Bob said, "The farm is a place for children to grow up, where the whole family can work together instead of each going his own way, where they learn responsibility."

Their oldest daughter who is now married and lives on their next-door tenant house interjected, "I'm glad I was raised on the farm. But most of the things I like now about the farm, I didn't like then — like shelling lima beans — but it taught me to stick to stuff and that helps me now in other things."

Over the past six years, the family has planted 1,200 apple, peach and pear trees by hand in their orchard. Bob explained, "We planted them to have a two-income farm so Keith could farm when he graduates."

This past spring, Keith graduated, and spent three months at youth missions in Costa Rico; he is now farming fulltime. Keith said, "I like working outside with the fruit trees, starting some thing and seeing it grow and seeing what you get. It's rewarding. But best of all," Keith admits, "I like the farm because your time is more flexible."

The children verbalize their appreciation for farm life. As a family, they spend a lot of time joking and laughing with each other. Recently, when the Fahnestocks celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, their daughter Valerie designed a card that gave them a choice of presents. In part, she wrote, "You have six lovely, but poor children who offer you a large inheritance to pay off the farm or a six-week trip out west or a vacation on a tropical island or labor to help pick corn." Naturally, their father chose his children's volunteer labor.

There are many jobs on the farm that must be done, but the Fahnestocks say they still have the freedom to fix their own schedule. For instance, they recently attended a Penn State football game and then returned home to feed the pigs. "We worked until about midnight that night, but if we had dairy we couldn't have done that." Both father and the oldest son were part of their church's baseball team this past spring.

Lois keeps busy being a homemaker, helping load pigs, teaching both a Sunday School class and a group of children during the week. She also sells their orchard produce to customers who drop by their farm.

Bob advises other farmers to ask advice of others but make decisions on what they think is best for their own situation.

Now, that the Fahnestocks have reached their goal of owning their own farm, what is their next goal? They'd like to get it completely paid off. And after their children are all on their own, Bob and Lois plan to walk the Appalacian Trail from Georgia to Maine. They'd also like to go into short-term mission work as three of their oldest children have done.

Lois said, "I'm glad I married a farmer." The whole family is adament that farm living has a lot to offer despite the obstacles.

Microwave Cooking

Soup is considered to be the most ancient of foods, but its beginning is hard to trace. In the delightful cookbook, "Soup" by Coralie Castle, there is a quote from Athenaeus 200 B.C.

"Some foods are for lovers some for philosophers
some for tax collectors
When one is near the grave
I prepare for him some lentil soup, and make the crowning meal of his life glorious"

During the hot summer months an occasional cold soup is very refreshing but once nippy weather arrives, warming soups and chowders become very appealing. Not only are they heartier and more filling on damp, chilly days but soup is a wonderful easy main dish complemented with a loaf of crusty bread and a crisp fruit salad.

Be sure to make extras and freeze them for later enjoyment. I prefer to make my soups at least a day or two ahead of serving so the flavor is enhanced.

There are so many soups that I enjoy. My favorite is New England Clam Chowder — lots of it — served with milk crackers.

Let's perform some autumn microwave magic together!

Our first recipe is from a fellow boater from the Chesapeake Bay and if you like seafood, you'll love this version. Incidentally, Millie and I both enjoyed our microwave ovens on board!

Millie Nagle's Crab Bisque

1 can or cup crab meat
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of asparagus soup
1 soup can milk
1 soup can Half and Half

Heat all ingredients on medium power 4 to 7 minutes, stirring 2 or 3 times until smooth and piping hot. Delicious and great for an easy soup-salad lunch or dinner.

Vegetable-Clam Chowder

2 medium carrots, sliced (about ½ cup)
2 medium potatoes, peeled and chopped (about 1½ cups)
1 medium onion, chopped
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 can (6½ oz.) minced clams, undrained
2½ cups milk
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
¼ teaspoon salt, dash pepper

1. Combine carrots, potatoes, onion, celery and liquid from clams in 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover with casserole lid.

2. Microwave (high) 10-12 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring once or twice. Combine milk, flour, bouillon, salt and pepper; mix until smooth. Add to vegetables.

3. Microwave (high), uncovered, 5 to 5½ minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring twice. Stir in clams.

Tip: 1 (6 oz.) package cooked, frozen tiny shrimp, thawed can also be added with clams. Microwave (high) 1 to 2 minutes or until heated.

Onion Soup

5 large onions
¼ cup butter
2 (10-ounce cans beef broth)
1½ cups water
Toasted bread croutons
8 ounces grated cheese (Swiss)
Parmesan cheese
Salt, pepper to taste

In a 3-quart glass casserole combine onions and butter. Microwave (high), covered, 6 to 8 minutes, stirring halfway through cooking. Add broth and water. Microwave (high), covered, 5 to 7 minutes until steaming hot. Spoon into 4 soup bowls. Sprinkle with croutons and cheeses. Salt and pepper to taste. Microwave (high) 4 to 6 minutes until cheese melts.

Veggie Soup

½ head cabbage, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion

County Observes Farm Women's Day

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MOUNT JOY (LANCASTER) — Over 280 county women mixed laughter and seriousness when they celebrated Pennsylvania Farm Women's Day on Wednesday at a Country Table brunch in Mount Joy.

On the serious side, Senator Noah Wenger and David Stetler, regional director for the state's Department of Agriculture, spoke to women about current agriculture issues.

The senator encouraged the women to vote to approve expending funds for the preservation of prime farm land.

Mr. Stetler representing the Department of Agriculture pointed out that every year a section of land equal to the size of Pittsburg gets swallowed up in industry. He said, "We can't continue that."

The audience expressed vocal, active interest in the proposal by questioning the pros and cons of supporting land preservation. Mr. Stetler encouraged the audience to let their feelings be known to their senators "so that the tax reform laws offer relief without grief instead of grief without relief."

In society business, Second vice-president Judy Greenleaf read the proclamation, designating October 14 as Farm Women Day, signed by county commissioners who recognize the important role farm women play in upholding the dignity and purpose of farming.

The observance was by no means all business. As designed the women enjoyed a day of fellowship and friendship by renewing old acquaintances and recalling past experiences while enjoying the brunch.

A former state president of the association, Helen Hess of Mountville, entertained those at her table with anecdotes from earlier farm women groups. When she was president, Mrs. Hess recalled that it was proper to wear a hat and white gloves at their functions. At one of her speaking engagements, she was very proud of the new hat she had bought for the function. She noticed an older woman observing her closely and after the meeting the woman approached her and said, "Dearie, your hat reminds me of a spittoon." Mrs. Hess admits that she never quite enjoyed her hat after that remark.

Founded in 1914, the Society of Farm Women continues to sponsor community activities and foster deeper appreciation for farm and rural life.

Current county president Mary Shellenberger said there are 900 members and 33 societies represented in Lancaster County. Statewide, there are more than 4,000 members in 189 societies.

New York Agricultural College Honors Alumni

ITHACA, N.Y. — Five graduates of the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University received the Outstanding Alumni Awards from the Alumni Association.

Recipients are Norman W. Allen ('46) of Schaghticoke, N.Y.; John W. Mellor ('50), Ph.D. '54) of Alexandra, Va.; C. William Severinghaus ('39) of Voorheesville, N.Y.; E. Stanley Shepardson ('36, M.S. '47) of Ithaca; and Robert S. Smith ('42, Ph.D. '52), also of Ithaca.

Allen is a dairy farmer, a machinery dealer and a banker. He was cited for his leadership and dedication to "making agriculture an even better way of life for his family and colleagues," the citation read in part. "Through his leadership he has been a major part of transforming agriculture and agribusiness to a modern progressive industry in New York State."

Mellor is director of the International Food Policy Research Institute in Washington, D.C., and one of the leading scholars in the field of international agricultural economic development. He was a faculty member at Cornell from 1954 to 1977, where he organized Cornell's first course in economics of agricultural development.

Severinghaus had served as a wildlife biologist for the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation for nearly 40 years, retiring in 1977. He is an authority on the biology and management of the white-tailed deer. The Wildlife Society has recently honored him with its Honorary Membership Award in recognition of his "outstanding contributions to wildlife science, management and the advancement of the profession."

Shepardson is a professor emeritus of agricultural engineering Cornell. He retired in 1978 after 42 years of service. He served as chairman of Cornell's Department of Agricultural Engineering for six years and was instrumental in developing the research program in agricultural engineering.

Smith is the W.I. Myers Professor of Agricultural Finance, Emeritus. He is the first holder of this prestigious professorship. He retired from Cornell in 1977 after 28 years of service. Throughout his career, he has distinguished himself as an expert on agricultural finance, business arrangements and organizations for farm business, and structural changes in agricultural lending organizations.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Gosh, I wonder what people without cows worry about?" I sighed, in frustration, one morning last week.

What prompted the negativism was the farmer's revelation that a heifer we'd found seriously ailing the previous evening was indeed in critical condition.

Out of one of the cow families we are trying to perpetuate in the herd, and only two weeks from her calving date, she'd been diagnosed with a probable torn uterus. What we'd initially feared as a unexplained bloating condition was far worse, a filling of her body with fluids from the internal injury. Terminal, very likely. Cause? Unknown, but probable injury from severe shoving or riding by a herdmate in the bred heifer lot.

Kept alive the next few days with doses of intraveneous fluids, she went into a premature labor, difficult delivery, and a dead bull calf. Though she nibbled at hay that evening, she lies, paralyzed, as I write.

I long ago decided that tending a herd of cattle is very much akin to looking after a similar number of small children. Sort of running a nursery school for four-legged charges. Like little children, groups of animals are susceptible to all sorts of puzzling health challenges. And, like people, some cattle easily resist health afflictions, some seemingly out of sheer stubbornness, while others fall prey to every little flaky bit of bacteria or virus floating through the air.

Strange herd health occurrences generally hit in "strings," like the chicken pox or intestinal flu sweeping through a kindergarten class. We seem to be in the middle of a "string."

Just days before the torn uterine disaster, a recently-fresh, three-year-old had been diagnosed with another toughie. This was an abdominal twist, in which the stomach slips out of place, up around the cow's left side, and must be surgically attached back where belongs. Most are fairly routine, and over the years, we've seen relatively good success and recovery rates.

But (there's always a "but" hanging out somewhere near by), if the stomach twists up the right side, you're looking at a much more serious problem. And, this was one of those right side twists. While the operation proved to be a clinical success, the patient ultimately didn't.

Her heifer calf had also offered a puzzling health prci em. It simply couldn't seem to control it's tongue, or swallow properly. Not uncommon to calves born with difficulty, or from mothers with some ailment, the nursing and swallowing problem didn't quickly improve, as it usually does as the calf's system adapts. It almost seemed as if the affectionate little heifer had suffered nerve or brain damage at birth. But that didn't really explain why she always had bits of straw dangling from her tongue.

Then, the farmer discovered and removed from this baby calf's throat a large, wadded-up ball of straw. And another. And I removed about two more, over succeeding days.

Relocating this precociously-chewing infant to a pen bedded with only sawdust finally seemed to solve the problem. She now gulps her bottle, devours calf-starter grain, and seems perfectly normal. I'm afraid to feed her hay, and have been offering only tiny tastes of it, and then mostly leaves.

Such a litany could go on and on, rehashing the weird health afflictions that seem to fall in strings - on every dairy, every livestock, every poultry production operation. Indeed, the frustration of the inevitable failures tends to push into the background all the successes. Like Valery, more dead than alive from a "normal" stomach twist several months ago, now back in the milking string, her normal, if somewhat aggravating at times, self.

What do people worry about who don't have cows?

Why, their families, their health, their jobs, friends, homes, cars. The weather. World peace. Making sense out of the childishness of modern-day major politics. Bills. What to make for supper - and on, and on, and on. The same things that people with cows also worry about.

Cows, I'm convinced, just further diversify one's dimensions of worry.

Food Scientist Investigates Canning

UNIVERSITY PARK — Grandma's canned pickles or tomatoes may not have sickened or killed anyone, but that does not prove her food preservation methods were safe, according to a Penn State researcher.

"In response to a massive return to home gardening and home canning in the mid-1970s (during the energy crisis) we began a systematic investigation of proper and safe methods for preserving fresh produce," Dr. Gerald D. Kuhn, professor of food science and director of Penn State's Center of Excellence in Home Food Preservation, said.

Today, as many as 65 million Americans are eating home-canned food, and more than 100 million are eating home-frozen food, he noted.

With funding from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Kuhn and his research technician, Tom Dimick, began a scientific study of home canning and freezing methods. The USDA has designated Penn State a Center of Excellence in Home Food Preservation, the only such center in the nation.

"Our goal is to back up each food preservation recommendation with scientific research," Kuhn said. "We want to help people preserve higher quality food that has better color, cleaner flavor, longer shelf life and more nutrients than previous canning and freezing methods were capable of producing.

"We also want to re-educate people about safe preservation methods. Renewed interest in canning and freezing in 1975 resulted in a high incidence of botulism, which was traced to some home canning methods," he added.

Clostridium botulinum, a spore-forming bacteria, grows in foods nearly depleted of oxygen. When conditions favorable for growth occur, the cells multiply and produce a deadly toxin.

"You don't want to take risks in canning," Kuhn warned.

To take the risk out of food preservation, he and Dimick, a graduate student, reviewed existing canning and freezing publications and are lab-testing the directions.

They will make their research results available to the USDA and draft two new, comprehensive publications on canning and freezing. The USDA plans to release the publications, which will become the national standards, Kuhn noted.

The first publication, on canning, will be printed in January 1988. The second one, covering freezing methods, will be available in 1989, he said.

The new students will cover step-by-step directions for obtaining food, either by growing it or buying it in bulk; canning and freezing it; and preparing it for consumption. They will also provide the nutritional content per serving.

In addition to the comprehensive canning and freezing guides, Kuhn has started a supplemental series called "Let's Preserve" that addresses, in brief form, preservation methods for foods not commonly grown in the home garden.

Current USDA food preservation guidelines and the "Let's Preserve" series are available at county cooperative extension offices or by writing to Penn State, College of Agriculture, Publications Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, Pa. 16802.

Evergreen Shedding

Lots of gardeners and homeowners seem to be concerned again this fall because they see parts of their evergreens turning yellow, then brown. The only advice is to keep calm. According to Susan Goldsworthy, Delaware County Cooperative Extension Horticulturalist, this happens to evergreens every year, but they may go unnoticed in some years.

Watch your evergreens and you'll see that it stays green all year simply because it does not lose all its foliage at once. The plant produces new leaves or needles every year and some of the old inside ones die and fall to the ground.

The life of an evergreen leaf ranges from one year to six, depending on the species. Among evergreens that drop their year-old leaves or needles are laurel, holly, white pine and arborvitae. Trees that hold their green needles three to five years or more include spruce, fir, hemlock, yew (taxus) and the pines that have two or three needles in a cluster. Most needle-bearing evergreen shed their old foliage in the fall. Holly leaves, on the other hand, drop in spring or early summer about the time new foliage covers the ends of the branches.

You don't always notice the annual leaf or needle drop because new leaves or needles may hide the inside foliage that has turned yellow or brown. It depends on the past and current growing seasons. During a rainy summer most plants put on a heavy growth of foliage. If the summer has been dry, there will be a light growth which will not conceal the old yellowing leaves. The effects of normal leaf or needle drop may be more striking a year or two after you transplant evergreens.

Festival Demonstrates Amazing Apple Uses

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

ARENDTSVILLE — The 23rd National Apple Harvest Festival sponsored by the Upper Adams Jaycees, is held the first two weekends in October at the South Mountain Fairgrounds located off of Route 234 just west of Arendtsville. The annual celebration is as American as apple pie.

Festival planners estimate that 50,000 people browsed through the handicraft displays and demonstrations created by about 200 artisans, toured some of the 15,000 acres of Adams County apple orchards that produce almost 300 million pounds of apples per year, and listened to the entertainment on three different stages.

But, everyone agrees that the most popular thing at the Apple Harvest Festival is the food. There are apple jellies, syrups, candied apples, hot spiced cider, apple butter, apple pancakes, apple sauce, apple nuggets, and home-made apple desserts. There is also a variety of sandwiches and chicken barb-que dinners.

One favorite at the festival is the fresh made candied and caramel apples. Kim Lott, whose family are fruitgrowers, explained that the cherry-flavored candy coating is heated to 300 degrees before the apples are hand-dipped. Both the candy coating and the caramel coating require constant stirring. A volunteer crew of fruitgrowers and Jaycee members coated five bins, containing 25 bushels of apples each, at the festival.

The popular apple theme is also carried over in the handicrafts. One of the most popular exhibits at the festival are the applehead dolls created by Gladys Sweigard, Halifax. Gladys explained that she carved her first doll head when she was nine years old to make herself a doll. Carving became a life-long hobby for her and when she started teaching youngsters to carve, she revitalized her own skills.

She started attending the festival 10 years ago. Gladys remembers that she was happy if she sold five of her dolls then. But, reflecting that her business has grown right in stride with the festival, this year she brought along 300 dolls for display and anticipates sale of well over 100 of these.

Gladys explains that the head is carved from any variety of unripe apple and then dipped in a lemon water and salt mixture. It is allowed to dry for three months and then is shellacked. Gladys then mounts the heads on fiber-filled doll bodies and dresses them in a variety of themes.

Each year Gladys tries to bring a new doll to the festival. This year's new creation is Kris Kringle. She is quick to add that this is not Santa Claus, but rather the more old-fashioned rendition.

People love to just stop and admire the detail of the carved faces and the expressions drying has given each doll's face. Gladys takes about 15 minutes to carve each head, unless she is doing a portrait head which then requires about a half hour.

Another popular booth at the festival is the official souvenir stand. Here festival goers can purchase hats, T-shirts, mugs, buttons, and an Apple County Apple Cookbook. The cookbook was first published in 1977 by the Upper Adams Jaycees.

Now in its second edition, editor Joan Bucher explained that although the cookbook has evolved from a mimeographed copy to a gloss covered, spiral bound edition it still contains lots of good homemade apple recipes from Adams County cooks.

Proceeds from the sales of the cookbook, like all the proceeds from the festival are used by the Upper Adams Jaycees. Half the money is used to maintain their 53 acre Oakside Community Park. The other half is donated to local charities.

Besides a host of mouth-watering recipes, the cookbook also has a section on apple trivia. Did you know?

One pound of apples consists of: 4 small apples, 3 medium apples or 2 large apples.

Two medium apples yield one cup grated apple.

Allow two pounds of apples for one 9-inch pie.

A peck of apples weighs about 10.5 pounds.

One bushel of apples weighs about 42 pounds and yields 18-20 quarts of canned or frozen apple slices.

Gladys Swelgard poses with her latest applehead doll creation, Kris Kringle. Gladys has brought her dolls to the National Apple Harvest Festival for the past ten years. Starting then with sales of less than a half-dozen dolls, Gladys now sells over 100 dolls each year during the festival held the first two weekends in October at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

Kim Lott, center, candy coats one of the 125 bushels of candy apples that get sold at the National Apple Harvest Festival. They coat either candy and caramel onto the apples. Kim says for some strange reason, more people buy candy apples in the morning and more caramel apples in the afternoon.

Heritage Days Of Watsontown

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

WATSONTOWN — "If we had to cook like this, we'd go to McDonald's every night," Donna Meyer joked while cooking over an open hearth at the fifth annual Heritage Days celebration. Heritage Days were held at the Hower-Slote House on the Warrior Run High School Farm, near Watsontown on October 3 and 4 and attended by 1,000 people.

Although warmly dressed in a long cape, Mrs. Meyer, like many others participating in the 64 demonstrations, crafts, and activities of the event, was fighting a biting wind that shed the first snow of the season on nearby counties. This was coupled with billowing smoke that followed her round the hearth and made her eyes bloodshot. Nevertheless, she and her friends, Pam Bower, and Debbie Menges held their post demonstrating how to bake pumpkin bread in a dutch oven by an open hearth. Mrs. Meyer explained that the dutch oven was a cast iron pot about 10-inches deep with a pie-plate-shaped lid that held hot coals. The pot was not taken to the hearth; instead, hot coals were deposited on the lid which then heated the contents of the oven.

In addition to several food demonstrations, there were exhibitions covering every aspect of colonial life from butchering and powder horn engraving, to bullet-making and beekeeping. The 12th Pennsylvania Regiment & Riflemen, Northumberland County Militia and Butlers Rangers (Tories) with their tents and campfires and authentic soldiering garb lent color to the event as well as imparting information about soldiering in colonial times.

Teenagers Ruth Voris and Elisa Frey took off their mittens long enough to illustrate for visitors a typical 18th century wash day complete with a scrubbing board, tub, plunger, lye soap, and an old Sunbeam wringer of 1800 vintage.

An old kitchen stove or two with their stovepipes pointing strangely skyward dotted the landscape where one could sample fresh baked molasses or sugar cookies or fresh popped corn.

Carol Harmon, Watsontown, practiced dipping bayberry candles for the first time. "I had a really nice pair that some one bought," she said. "It takes a lot of practice to do it so they look store-bought." The early settlers, she explained, gathered bayberries and boiled them and collected the bayberry wax to make fragrant bayberry candles.

Inside the Hower-Slote House amid colonial furnishings were a variety of crafts and demonstrations. Marion Muffly, Watsontown, with her covered stool in front of her, practiced the almost forgotten art of making delicate bobbin lace. According to Marion, the pattern is drawn on graph paper first and then executed by twisting linen thread around pins placed vertically at designated places in the paper to form the lace. The pins are then moved to the next place in the design at which time the whole sequence is repeated. Marion said she was using 21 pair of bobbins for the design she was using.

Next door Phyllis Reynolds, Williamsport, explained frakturing to visitors which she described as a predominately Pennsylvanian art. According to Phyllis, ministers and teachers were called upon to write and decorate such items as birth and wedding certificates so they could either be framed to hang on a wall or placed in family Bibles. This writing and decorating was called frakturing. Although the items weren't signed by the person, the frakture designs reveal different styles.

Boiled and fleece stuffed mittens were one of the most interesting displays of Heritage Days. Demonstrated by Grace Wetten, Watsontown, the mittens were so named, she said, because they were often knit larger than necessary and shrunk to size by boiling and because they had additional strands of wool inserted on the wrong side of the knitting for extra warmth.

Grace said the mittens originated in Newfoundland and Labrador in the 1800's and at later dates were found in Maine. The mittens are knitted with 100 percent wool that retains much of the natural oils with some of the natural wool fibers woven at intervals into the mittens.

"This makes the mitten warmer and more water repellant," Grace said. "They'd be great for kids sled riding," she adds.

Grace, a hairdresser, first heard of the boiled mittens from a client who asked if she would knit a pair of them for her husband who had a problem with the cold. When she finished knitting the mittens, Grace said, she wanted to sew a piece of suede on the palm to keep them from slipping when doing outside chores. But the man refused. Later he reported the mittens don't slip and are very comfortable.

Regarding the actual construction of the mittens, Grace said, a wool strand is woven in the mittens every sixth stitch in every sixth row. When the knitting is finished, she said, she takes a crochet hook and secures the wool strands to the inside of the mitten. This makes an inside fleece similar to leather gloves that when used mats together for additional warmth.

The pattern for boiled mittens, Grace added, may be found in "Fox & Geese & Fences," a collection of traditional Maine mittens by Robin Hansen available at many local libraries and book stores.

Phyllis Reynolds, Williamsport, holds an example of Frakturing, which is a house blessing. This is predominately a Pennsylvania craft that ministers and teachers wrote and decorated on items like birth and wedding certificates that were hung on the wall or inserted in the family bible.

Sarah & John McClintock, Cogan Station, mulling cider with a toddy iron. The toddy iron was placed in the coals until it became hot and then was plunged in the cider to warm it. It also was used to make various other drinks such as hot buttered rum.

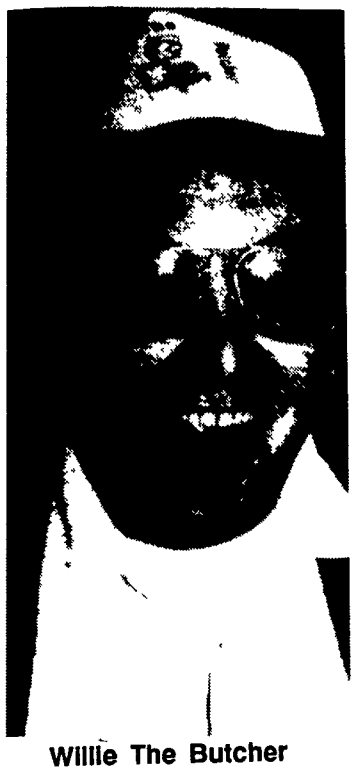
Perspectives On The Manheim Farm Show Livestock Sale

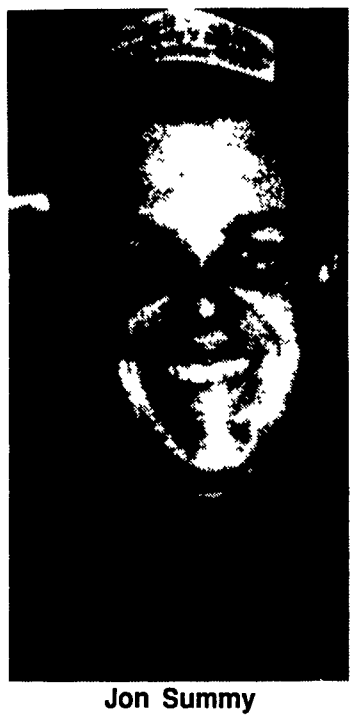


Willie The Butcher

As a buyer Willie the Butcher from Stauffers of Kissel Hill believes the sale is a good time to support young people in agriculture. Willie said, "As a youngster I was an FFA'er and Manheim Central is my alma mater." Willie bought 11 hogs, 14 lambs and 3 steers at the Friday night sale.

Carolyn Nestleroth

As a 4-H'er Carolyn Nestleroth, Manheim, likes to come to the sale. This was the second year she sold a hog at the sale. "It's kind of fun," she said. "I like it."



Jon Summy

FFA'er Jon Summy of Manheim, said, "It's a very good experience and lots of fun." He was pleased with winning first place in his class during the steer show. He said, "I'd like to encourage more buyers to come. It's good advertising for them."

Debbie Selbert

As an FFA advisor, Debbie Selbert, gives a teacher's view of the sale. "I have to come. It's part of my job," she said. "I think the sale gets community support behind the kids and gives them incentive. They usually get above market prices for their animals." As the Manheim Vo-Ag instructor, she helps organize an appreciation banquet held in the spring for the buyers.

Jackie Longenecker

As a parent of an FFA exhibitor, Jackie Longenecker, Lititz, thinks the Manheim sale is great. She said, "The businessmen really support the sale and they should be recommended for that." She thinks raising livestock is good for the kids and teaches them responsibility. It's a lot of hard work and Jackie admits she feels relieved that everything went so well.

Record-Breaking Manheim Farm Show Sale

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM — The grand finale of the Manheim Community Farm Show happened last Friday, October 9, when bidders paid top prices for steers, pigs and sheep at the Manheim Farm Show Livestock Sale.

Country Table Family Restaurant edged out competition again this year by giving a record-breaking bid of $5 a pound for the grand champion steer. The 1280-pound steer, owned by David Cassel of Manheim, totaled a hefty $6,400.

Penway Construction of Manheim purchased the reserve champion for $2.10 a pound. The 1280-pound steer was owned by Andy Allen, Manheim R4.

The twelve steers sold at the auction brought an average of $1.36 a pound. Other buyers included Willie the Butcher, G & G Feeds, White Oak Mills, Moyer Packing, Royers Construction, Maheim Auto Auction and Steigel Construction.

The sale's 80 hogs averaged 84.91 cents a pound. Top bidder Bombergers' Store in Elm purchased the grand champion for $4.00 a pound. David Cassel also owned the champion hog which weighed 226-pounds and brought $904.

Hatfield Packing purchased Blue Ball resident Scott Bailey's reserve champion for $3.35 a pound.

Other volume buyers included Farm Crest, Lititz; Willie the Butcher, Lititz; Evergreen Packing Co., Lebanon; McCracken's Feed Mill, Manhei, Penway Construction, Manheim; White Oak Mills and Leidy Packing.

The sale's 33 lambs sold for an average of $1.16 a pound. Elizabethtown resident Mark Tracy's grand champion sold for $3.55 a pound to Willie the Butcher, Lititz.

Evergreen Tractor, Lebanon, bought the reserve champion for $2.10 a pound from Phil Yeagley of Elizabethtown.

The sale's most adament bidder, Willie the Butcher of Stauffers of Kissel Hill, purchased 13 sheep and G & G Feeds bought 7 of the sale's lambs.

New Law Provides Penalty For Possessing Milk Cases

HARRISBURG — You see them many places — in garages, basements, trucks, back of motorcycles, marinas, college dormitories, just name it. They are the colorful and unfortunately useful milk cases used by dairies to deliver milk to stores, restaurants, etc.

But, using them without permission is illegal, can cost the user a big fine or jail sentence if convicted.

Governor Robert Casey signed legislation on July 9, which becomes effective October 7, stating that any person who is in possession of a milk case without permission "commits a summary offense and shall, upon conviction, be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding $300 or to imprisonment for more than 90 days."

However, there is a "grace period" of 60 days — that means December 6 — to permit those who have cases in their possession to return them WITHOUT PENALTY. That means cases may be returned to stores that sell the milk from the dairy named on the case, or to the dairy itself, without any fine or conviction. After that time legal action will be taken.

Why was this law passed?

"The milk industry in Pennsylvania every year loses milk cases valued at many millions of dollars," said Earl Fink, Executive Vice President of the Harrisburg based Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers. "This ultimately must raise the price of milk to the consumers of Pennsylvania, which means those who do not illegally take these cases must help pay the bill. The industry regrets this action had to be taken, but the costs are prohibitive and keep increasing year after year."

This same legislation, known as Act 37 of 1987, also provides an identical penalty for the illegal use of food store shopping carts, bread trays, laundry carts and egg baskets. These industries also lose a phenomenal number of this expensive equipment, according to the milk dealer spokesman, which also is reflected in prices to the consumer. The 60-day grace period also applies for the return of these items.

"College students are big violators," Fink added, "as they use them for shelves and supports in their dormitories. Marinas also use many cases, as do many people who use trucks and keep supplies in these cases. They also are seen at open air markets and used by street vendors. In the past, cases have not only been used but also sold at flea markets. These will be checked after the grace period and punitive action will be requested."

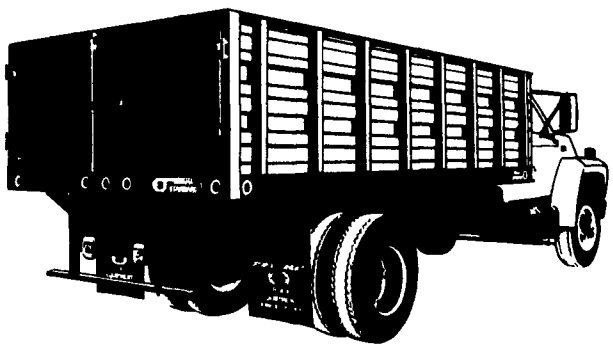
Solid Stake Sides



Omaha Standard's solid steel stake sides are designed for confined cargo or bulk hauling, and are ideal for landscapers, trash haulers and contractors. They fit both our Standard and Metro platforms and come in heights of 28", 40" and 52". These sides are available with the standard solid front or an optional steel bulkhead with full width mesh window.

The solid 2-section, Econo-door rear is "glove" fit to the platform and sides, and offers unobstructed access to the interior. The doors fold back flush with body sides for easy loading and unloading.

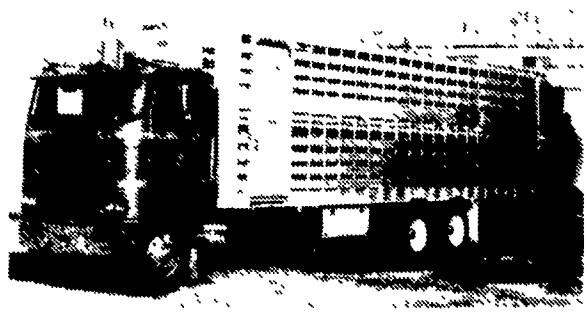
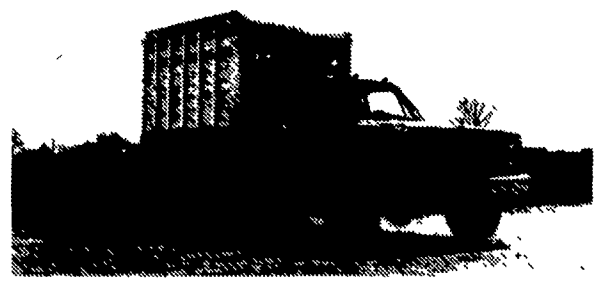
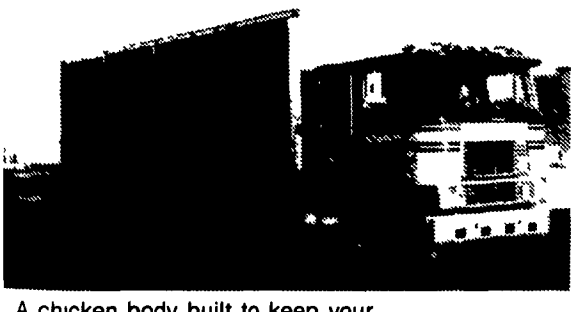
An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul



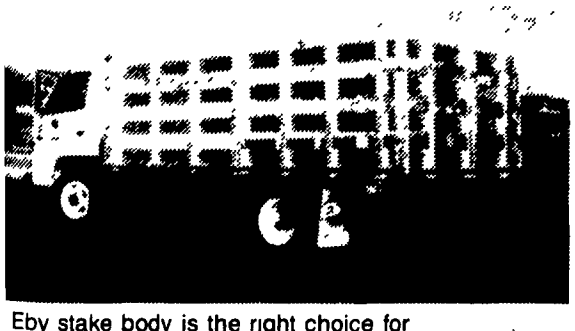
Reliable Eby livestock bodies are now aerodynamically designed.



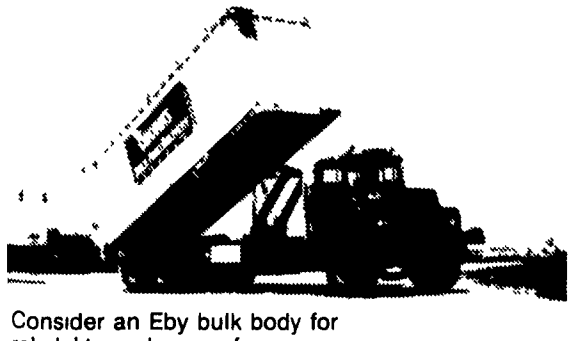
Eby's slip-in extends the usefulness of your pickup for minimal investment



A chicken body built to keep your birds dry and protected.



Eby stake body is the right choice for farm or commercial use.



Consider an Eby bulk body for reliability and ease of use.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

FARM & RURAL PROPERTY DIVISION

WHO'S NUMBER 1?

If you are a Penn State Football Fan, you know the answer.

If you are comparing Realtors, several different measures can be used: One is the size of the inventory; Another is the number of salespeople. Perhaps a better way is to compare the QUALITY and PROFESSIONALISM of the services provided. HERITAGE REALTY's Farm and Rural Property Division counsels each seller on the best way to market his property, prepares accurate detailed brochures for each listing and follows through with a proven advertising and marketing program, including detailed videotaping of all operating farms.

Whether you are buying or selling a farm or rural property in Central Pennsylvania, we would be pleased to put our 15 years of farm and rural property experience to work for you.

Call or write for our free lists, or see our bi-weekly Lancaster Farming ad in the October 10th issue.

We Start More Tractors Than John Deere, Kubota And Ford Put Together.

To keep farms running like well-oiled machines, farmers need well-oiled machinery. And, from time to time, that means new machinery.

Farm Credit can help you with a special equipment loan. For a tractor or combine. A baler, harvester or loader. Even a new pick-up truck.

Right now, our rates are as competitive as ever. And our terms won't remind you of a tractor pull.

Farm Credit has been helping farmers start their farms, and keep them running, for 70 years. With loans for land, houses, seed and fertilizer, as well as new equipment.

There's a good reason why we want farmers to prosper. It's because we're farmers, too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

Which probably explains why we've started more John Deeres, Kubotas and Fords than anyone else in the field.

New This Fall - Solid Tarping With Methyl Bromide

BY THOMAS A. BREWER

October is National Cooperative Month. The theme for this, the 22nd annual observance, is "Cooperatives: People in Partnership." Perhaps it's a good time to think about cooperatives, their importance and the unique characteristics which set them apart from other business enterprises.

The cooperative form of business organization is more widely used than many people realize. It is not restricted to farmers. Consumers also organize cooperatives. Federal credit unions, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks, mutual insurance companies, housing, health care and food buying cooperatives are examples.

The Associated Press and Florists' Telegraph Delivery (FTD) are examples of cooperatives organized by non-farmers. Independent supermarket owners have formed cooperatively owned wholesalers to purchase and deliver groceries, produce and meats to them for resale. An early cooperative was organized under the leadership of Benjamin Franklin. Its primary purpose was to provide fire insurance for home owners. It was out first mutual fire insurance company. Some believe it to have been the first cooperative established in the United States.

Farmers have a long history of working together to do things they can't very well do by themselves. Barn-raisings and threshing rings were and still are common ways of performing important jobs. Every job that requires more labor or equipment than an individual farmer or his family can provide, tends to become a neighborhood task. In the late 19th century, when farmers found it necessary to become more market oriented, they found it difficult, individually, to meet buyer's requirements. Many felt dominated in a "buyers market" where they were forced to take what was offered or not sell at all. As individuals they had little market power. Each controlled such a small portion of available supplies that it was impossible to bargain effectively. Over the last hundred and fifty years farmers have formed cooperatives to deal with these types of problems. They form them to perform those functions and provide those services which farmer-members believe are needed to increase the profitability of their individual farms.

Early farmer cooperatives appeared prior to the Civil War but the greatest growth in numbers took place during the late 1800's and in the period between World War I, and World War II. Currently there are over 6,000 separate cooperatives serving U.S. agriculture.

More than 75 percent of all milk is marketed through farmer-owned, farmer-controlled cooperatives. Some of the dairy cooperatives are large regional organizations with memberships and markets spanning several states. Others are small local bulk-assembly cooperatives. Some dairy farmers belong to both types. Cooperatives have also been organized to meet other special needs of dairy farmers. Artificial breeding cooperatives and DHIA association are notable examples.

Dairy farmers are not alone in recognizing a need for collective marketing. Others cooperatively market a wide array of processed fruit, vegetable, potato and mushroom products. Still others market fresh fruits and vegetables, cotton, rice, and other grains. Farmers markets, livestock auctions and sheep and wool pools have been organized and do business as cooperatives.

Cooperatives have been organized to secure dependable supplies of feed, fertilizer, seed, petroleum and other items needed for production. There are several large regional and hundreds of smaller farm supply cooperatives serving U.S. agriculture. The Cooperative Farm Credit system, Rural Electric Associations and dozens of other cooperatives are important to farmers and other rural residents.

Each year farmers find new ways to use this form of business and each year some cooperatives merge with others. Some also go out of business. Thus the number of cooperatives serving farmers has declined during the last ten years but the range of activities and volume of business done by them has grown.

In 1985, Farmer Cooperatives marketed 28% of all U.S. agricultural products. Three-fourths of the milk, about one third of the grain and cotton, and about one seventh of all fruits and vegetables were marketed through farmer cooperatives. Cooperatives marketed about one-tenth of the livestock and poultry. On the supply side cooperatives provided farmers with 44% of their fertilizer 43% of their petroleum and about 15% of their feed and seed requirements in 1985.

In 1985 New York and Pennsylvania ranked 9th and 13th respectively among the states in the dollar volume of cooperative business. Those rankings were up from 10th and 14th in 1983. Combined these two states did $4 billion of business in 1985 (2.2 in New York and 1.8 in Pennsylvania) which was down from $4.1 billion in 1983.

The average U.S. farmer is a member of several cooperative organizations. Cooperatives perform functions and provide services that individuals can't economically provide for themselves and permit gaining of market-power and through it, more effective bargaining is possible.

Determinants of cooperative success: The requirements for success of a cooperative are the same as for any other business. Sound plans aimed at meeting "real" demands of customers (members); efficient operations; adequate financing; carefully thought out procedures and policies spelled out and monitored by a well-trained board of directors and translated into action by strong competent managers will go a long way toward ensuring satisfactory performance. A cooperative differs from other forms of business not in the rules for success but in how it is controlled and how the gains are distributed.

Despite similarities, cooperatives employ a few principles or practices which make them different from other businesses. Scholars argue about the number of such differences but all agree at least three are of major importance. The principles which make them different are that they 1) are democratically controlled, 2) operate at cost, and 3) limit returns on owner (member) invested capital.

Democratic Control - In general, cooperative owners have one vote per member. All members are equal. By contrast, other business firms are controlled by stock holders who vote in proportion to the shares of stock they own. An investor with 100 shares has 20 times as many votes as an investor with 5 shares. The primary incentive of the investor in a non-cooperative is to maximize profits. Since farmer-cooperatives are organized to increase the profitability of each member's farm rather than increase returns on capital invested in the cooperative itself, it is important that control be exercised by members as users rather than investors. Each member's vote must "count." Democratic control via one member - one vote or some close approximation to it, is therefore an important principle. Members invest in the cooperative to reap benefits as customers or suppliers of products for market, not as capital contributors. People, rather than dollars, control it.

Operation at Cost - Since the basic purpose of farmer cooperatives is to enhance the profitability of the member's farm, it would be senseless for the organization to profit at the member-patrons expense. A farm supply cooperative buys at as low a price as possible and adds the cost of operating the business to that price. It then charges patrons, prices which will recover the total but no more. A marketing cooperative sells at the highest possible price, subtracts cooperative operating costs and returns the remainder to members.

It is difficult and perhaps impossible to accurately determine operating costs or equitably allocate them among products on a day-today basis. So cooperatives generally do business with their members at prevailing "market prices" and return any accumulated margins at the end of the year after the books are closed and costs and returns have been more accurately determined. These are typically referred to as patronage refunds.

Vermont Castings has revolutionized the art of woodburning. Again. They did it the first time with the Defiant, a handsome, efficient woodstove with doors that opened for a view of the fire.

They've done it again with the Defiant Encore. With a strikingly beautiful design that will enhance any decor, a large, clear glass area for fire viewing, a super convenient ash removal system, and an incredibly clean-burning combustion system, the Encore is a tough act to follow.

Two points should be made with regard to this principle. First, since the cooperative does business "at cost" and the costs of running the cooperative are subtracted from gross returns in a marketing cooperative (added to the price of purchased goods in a supply cooperative) the level of cooperative operating costs is important. Cooperatives must strive for efficiency, and keep costs low and under control.

A second point about "doing business at cost" is that it helps explain the treatment of cooperatives by the various taxing authorities. Cooperatives pay most kinds of taxes other business units pay. Sometimes it is said they have an "unfair advantage" over others when it comes to federal income taxes. Some (particularly supply cooperatives) pay corporate income taxes just as any other business would. But a cooperative that adheres to the principle of doing business at cost has no profits upon which to pay taxes. There isn't any net income, hence no income tax. U.S. automobile companies were in much the same position in 1980. I'm sure it wasn't planned but when they have no profits they too avoid Federal income taxes. Successful cooperatives increase the returns or profits of the farms of their patrons and increase the tax burden there. The additional income from cooperative operations is taxed, but it is not double taxed as some parts of non-cooperative profits generally are.

Limited Returns on Member-provided Capital - Every business needs funds and owners have to provide a portion of them before bankers will extend credit.

A cooperative doing business at cost, has no profits. Capital providers obtain their benefits as users, not as capital contributors. So what is the problem? There is none as long as the capital contributed by each member is in proportion to each member's use of the cooperative. If member A provides 7 percent of the member capital and accounts for 7 percent of the cooperatives total business and all other members have a perfectly correlated relationship between capital provided and the proportion of the business each does with the cooperative there is no problem.

Seldom does that perfect correlation exist. The continually changing business volume of the cooperative's business, make it difficult to maintain a perfect relationship. New members may find it difficult to provide their share of needed capital at the time of joining. There is a tendency to accept some inequality between a members share of capital provided and share of business done with the cooperative.

The farmer who provides less than his or her share has a tendency to delay doing so. If someone else provides the capital the farmer will still receive the patronage benefits. On the other hand the members providing more than their share will get patronage benefits but will be supplying more than their share of the cooperatives capital. In effect they contribute more than their share but are not compensated for it.

In order to rectify the inequities of this situation some cooperatives pay interest or dividends on member-contributed capital. If paid, those expenditures become part of the cooperatives' operating costs and increase prices of supplies from the co-op (or decrease returns on product marketed). The member whose capital contribution is smaller than his or her share of the business in effect pays the member who provides more than a proportionate share of capital for its use. So far -- so good.

Without limiting the level of return on member-capital, problems may arise. Increases in returns to capital contributors decrease benefits to the cooperative's members as users. If capital contributors are allowed to demand returns (interest or dividends) that are too high, returns to patrons as cooperative users will vanish. Members providing the larger amounts of capital may change from expecting benefits as users to expecting them on the capital invested in the cooperative. To prevent this from happening statutory limits are placed on returns that can be paid on member capital. For many, these limits are 8% of face value but both higher and lower limits can be found among our fifty states.

Adhering to the sound practice of insisting that members provide capital in proportion to use of the cooperative is difficult. It requires constant attention. Slippage from strict observance of that practice makes it ever more difficult to achieve later.

These three principles and perhaps others distinguish cooperatives from non-cooperative business ventures. They make cooperative operations so different from the more typical for-profit business that the general public, business advisors, and even co-op members have difficulty adjusting their thought processes to understand them.

Beaver Fair Youth Livestock Sale

BY CRAIG BINGMAN
Snyder Co. Correspondent

BEAVER SPRINGS — Forty-four animals were auctioned off at the 59th Annual Beaver Community Fair on September 23 in Beaver Springs. The Youth Livestock Sale attracted 20 plus bidders to the annual event. Quality 4-H and FFA market lambs, hogs, and steers were shown by 24 youths.

The FFA grand champion lamb, owned by Henry Zerby, was sold to Steve Kline, representing Sunset Ice Cream. The 124-pound Suffolk-Hampshire cross lamb sold for $2.35 per pound. Henry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Zerby of Beaver Springs.

Henry's brother, Matt Zerby was owner of the FFA reserve grand champion market lamb. Matt sold his 120-pound Suffolk-Columbia cross lamb for $1.90 per pound to Mike Schrey, representing Farm Credit Service.

The FFA grand champion market hog was owned by Kelly Klingler. Her 215-pound mixed-breed animal sold for an impressive $2.59 per pound to Lynn Schwalm of Hatfield Packing. Kelly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Klingler, Selinsgrove.

Matt Zerby picked up a second FFA reserve grand champion with his 209-pound Hampshire-Yorkshire hog. The animal sold for $1.75 per pound to Farm Credit.

Reversing last year's order, Heather Hummel sold the grand champion steer at this year's auction. The 1137-pound purebred Angus was purchased for $1.02 per pound by Larry Benfer for Keister's Middleburg Auction. Heather is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hummel, Jr. of Selinsgrove.

Brother, Chad Hummel was the owner of the reserve grand champion steer. The 1337-pound Chainia steer sold for $.85 per pound to Dean Metzger of Metzger Custom Butchering.

Average prices at the auction were $1.03 per pound for lambs, $1.02 for hogs, and $.87 for steers. Average poundages were 104, 218, and 1255 respectively; an increase in all classes over last year's weights. Total volume sales for the evening were $9,069.21. Ray Long of Port Royal was the auctioneer.

4-H Shepherds Round Up Winners In Franklin Co.

FRANKLIN COUNTY — The Franklin County 4-H Round-Up was a three-phase affair this year, beginning with the on-foot judging of live lambs and the auction of market lambs on September 16. The competition concluded two nights later at the carcass judging at the Appalachian Lamb Co. in Greencastle.

Thomas Calvert, Somerset Co., judged the mediumweight lamb shown by David Sheiss of Marion, to be the grand champion of the on-foot competition and the Suffolk wether exhibited by Kenneth Bixel of Chambersburg to be reserve grand champion.

Sheiss' 102-pound wether was purchased by Miller's Orchard on New Franklin Road, while Greencastle Livestock Sales bought the reserve champion.

The market classes were judged in five weight classes, with the lightweight class going to the 88-pound Dorset wether shown by Gretchen Christman of Shippensburg. The medium lightweight class went to Eric Sheiss, who showed a ewe lamb; the mediumweight class was won by David Sheiss, while Kenneth Bixel's Suffolk took top honors in the medium heavyweight class. The heavyweight class was won by the Suffolk wether shown by Kelly Boyd.

The average sale price of the market lambs was $1.48 per pound with the average weight being 105 pounds.

In the carcass judging, first place was awarded to the lamb raised by Christiana Keener and sold to Cozy Inn; second place went to the 100-pound lamb raised by Gretchen Cristman and sold to Wayne F. Craig; and third place was given to Eric Sheiss's 94-pound lamb, which was purchased by Miller's Orchard.

Dr. William Henning, Penn State meats specialist and coach of the intercollegiate meats-judging team, was in charge of carcass grading. He was assisted by three members of the team: Gregory Hausser, Lancaster Co., William Deans, Lawrence Co., and Jan Waltz, Lancaster Co.

Judge Thomas Calvert, left, selected Kenneth Bixel's Suffolk as reserve grand champion.

The 102-pound wether shown by David Sheiss, Marion, was judged as grand champion.

"Tsterling" won the grand champion stallion ribbon for Kate Stanton of Miami, FL. The reserve grand champion stallion was "High Mystic," exhibited by High Mystic Partnership of Greenwood, Del. The two stallions were the champion and reserve champion, respectively, of the senior class.

The junior champion filly, "DM Ras Bakuraa," was entered by Sylvia Shellenberger of York, beating out Jajiba for that honor.

A Philadelphia exhibitor, William Richmond, claimed the award for the champion gelding, "Antares Asam," and the reserve champion gelding was "Abdyn B. Syyn," shown by G & R Mowers of Ivyland, Bucks County.

The Arabian Mounted Native Costume competition was won by "GL Elco Kid," owned by Barbara Sippel of Bradshaw, MD. Runner-up honors went to "Merkeb Sadeyran," shown by Lee Seibert of Hershey, Dauphin County.

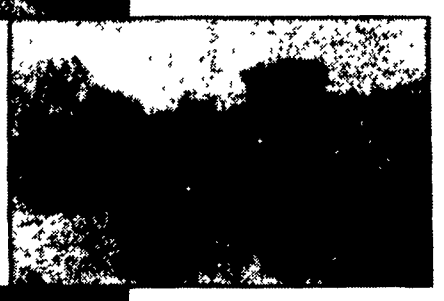
Turn Wood Bark Into $$$ Dollars!

Here Is A Unique Opportunity To Earn Extra Profit From Sawmill Operations

Wood bark was considered waste material only a few years ago. These mountains of bark, both hardwood and pine, also created disposal problems.

Now these wood wastes are put through a Farmhand Tub Grinder which reduces the bark into a specific particle size.



The end products are sold both in bags and in bulk by the truckload. They are in demand by lawn and garden supply outlets, golf courses, nurseries, parks and landscapers.

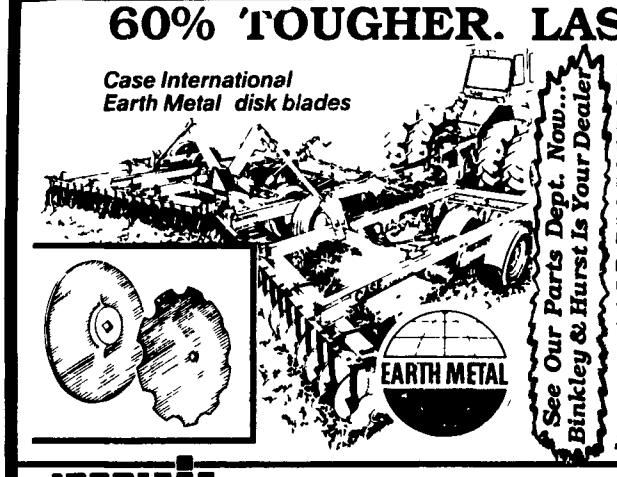
60% TOUGHER. LAST 20% LONGER.



Super hard and super tough! Exclusive Earth Metal disk blades made from a special steel formula are much tougher and last much longer than conventional blades

How can this be? Because the uniform internal structure of the steel is virtually non-directional it's equally tough in all directions It also takes a greater degree of hardening so blades stay sharp longer rarely split or shatter And the unique crimped-center design of the blades makes them stronger still and reduces the amount of power needed to pull the harrow as well

Don't settle for ordinary blades that require frequent replacement See us for genuine Case International Earth Metal blades

Don't forget to see our Parts Dept... We have Earth Metal Blades for replacing or rebuilding any brand of disk harrow you may have.

ATTENTION!
International Harvester Owners

Tighten worn steering arms on 56-66-86 series IH tractors without welding, splitting, or bolting.

A taper is machined into the new steering arms. A sleeve is then broached to match the original splines of the spindle. The outside of the sleeve is tapered to match the inside taper of the arms. These two, finely-machined surfaces then meet for a neat, permanent, surelock fit. A key is installed for added strength and safety.

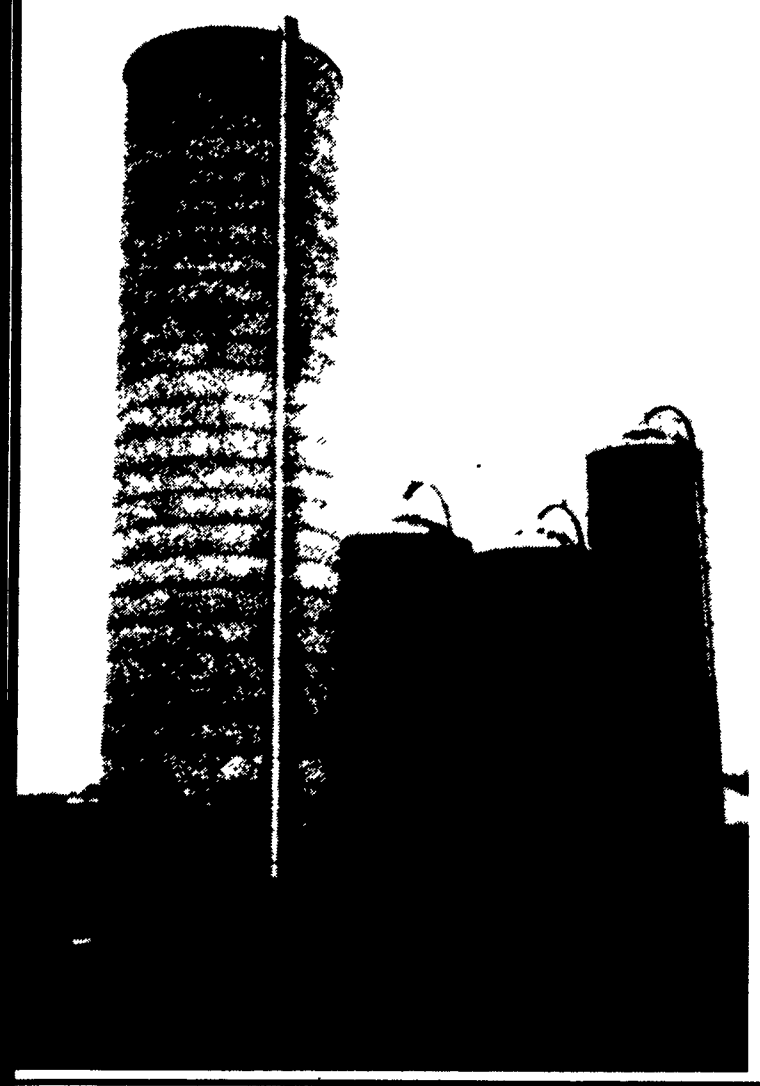
Solid Ways To Improve Your Farm

Consider The Many Advantages Of Concrete



You still have time to get your Sollenberger Silo for high moisture corn storage this fall. The summer of 1987 will be remembered for the many hot, dry days. These high temperatures damaged a lot of stored corn in structures that have a thin wall and do not reflect heat. Avoid this heat damage with a poured concrete silo from Sollenberger Silos Corp.

* The Laidig 43 bottom unloader handles high moisture ear corn and shelled corn.

* The Laidig 98 or 198 will do a good job with grains; or forage at 55-60% moisture. BY FILLING EARLIER YOU CAN SAVE YOUR VALUABLE LEAVES.

✔ Smooth 6'' Poured Concrete Walls
✔ Sure-Seal Filling System Opens And Closes From The Ground
✔ Safety Rail Around The Poured Concrete Roof
✔ Enclosed Gooseneck
✔ Many Other Features
✔ Flying Dutchman Unloader Available

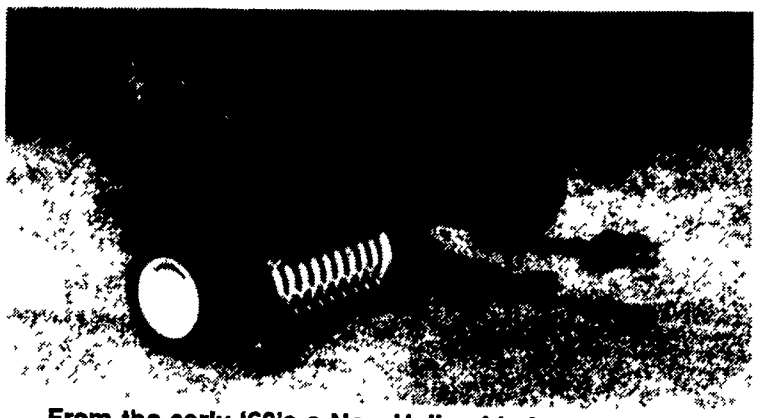
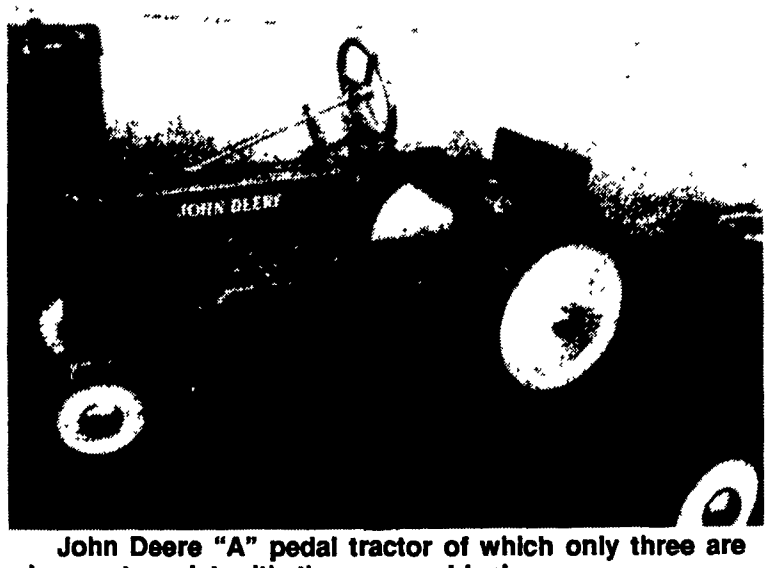
Thousands Of Farm Tractors Headed For Lancaster

They're coming from 14 states and Canada; including Florida and Ontario as well as North Dakota and Iowa. Their destination is the Lancaster Mennonite High School. The date is October 24th but many will "roll in" the evening before. No there won't be a lot of smoke and traffic jams. (Not tractor caused, at least) for these tractors are scale model toy tractors. The kind that children play with. But these players are big children who think nothing of filling display cases with over 100 tractors and spending over a hundred dollars for certain older models.



From the early '60's a New Holland baler in the 1/16th" scale complete with detachable bale thrower.



John Deere "A" pedal tractor of which only three are known to exist with the square block.

The typical farm toy collector is employed in agri-business or was at one time. He is 30 or older and will usually specialize in a particular brand of toy. Frequently his coal is to get a complete collection. If he's collecting say the "Oliver" line, he'll want one each of all the Oliver toys ever offered. The Oliver line is a challenge to collect and a full collection consisting of nearly 100 different items would cost a collector over $10,000.

The hobby of farm toy collecting started in the mid-west among farmers and other agri-businessmen in the early 70's. About 6 or 8 years ago it spread to the farm communities of the east. How large is this hobby? One of the hobby's monthly magazines boasts a paid circulation of over 10,000. The national farm toy show held in Dyersville, Iowa each November draws over 15,000 collectors. A few of the larger shows in the East draw well over 1000 collectors.

The October 24th event at the Mennonite School gym consists of collectors displaying their collections in competition for trophys and other prizes. Included will be collections featuring "John Deere", "Ford and New Holland", "Oliver", "Farmall and IH", custom made items, farm layouts, pedal tractors (including the rare one worth over $1000) and farm animals. Additionally over 100 tables will be offering items for trade or sale. Included are older and newer farm toys, collector books and magazines, repair parts, decals and customizing accessories and even a few construction and toy truck models. Throughout the day videos will be shown about the manufacture of farm toys. Seminars will be offered on the topics "beginning farm toy collecting" and "special variations".

At 5:00 p.m., a large consignment auction of farm toys will start. Some 400 to 500 items are expected including some custom made items from the Weber family of Ohio and some rare mass produced farm toys from the 50's and 60's. Some of these original older toys will fetch hundreds of dollars each. Last year a rare chrome commemorative New Holland baler fetched over $500. Included in this auction will be a few construction toys, older trucks, and colored farm tractor advertising literature.

The Lancaster Mennonite High School gym is East of Lancaster along Route 30. Saturday's activities begin at 8:30 A.M. Admission is charged. For more information call (717) 768-3554.

DVC Students Meet With Agrimarketing Execs

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Professional relationships with major Agrimarketing industries were established by College students from Delaware Valley College with corporate marketing executives at a recent meeting in Wilmington, DE. Marketing respresentatives will work with students in a mentor program sponsored by the Chesapeake Chapter of the National Agri-Marketing Association (NAMA).

Professional relationships with major agrimarketing industries including DuPont, Ford/New Holland, and others were developed during the week. Corporate executives will share time and expertise with individuals as part of the mentor program.

The mentor program is designed to give interested college students an opportunity to visit NAMA member corporations one afternoon a month for one semester. The goal is to provide each student with professional exposure and to acquire an understanding of career opportunities in agrimarketing. It also gives these corporations time to evaluate participating students.

Students may participate in the mentor program through membership in the Delaware Valley College student NAMA chapter, known as NAMA/DelVal.

The Chesapeake professional NAMA chapter meeting in Wilmington, DE featured Jack Trout, an internationally-recognized advertising executive. Fourteen members of the NAMA/DelVal student chapter attended the dinner and presentation.

Processing, marketing and distribution of foods are projected as growth opportunities in the 1990s. NAMA membership enhances students' education with professional exposure in these agrimarketing functions.

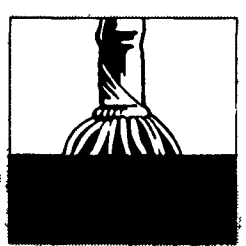
Delaware Valley College is a four-year, private, coeducational institution in Doylestown, Bucks County, PA, offering Bachelor of Science degree programs in seven agricultural majors as well as Business Administration, Computer Information Systems Management, Biology and Chemistry; and a two-year Associate degree program in Equine Science.

G-4446

A number of top-yielding characteristics.

Record yielder.

Tolerant to leaf and stalk diseases.



Excellent standability through harvest.

Here's the new Champ! At 252.4 bu./acre, G-4446 set the new all-time record in the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club's Shelled Grain Class in 1986.

Of course, this doesn't surprise the farmers who've seen it top their own yield trials. In fact, it's been one of the best performers we've ever seen in the 105-day class.

One of the reasons for its success is impressive late standability. When others are dropping bushels to the ground, G-4446 stands firm and holds onto its ears. It also husks easily and tests heavy, making it a favorite for either picking or combining.

Bloomsburg Fair Is A Crowd Pleaser

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia Co. Correspondent

BLOOMSBURG — This year the call of the Bloomsburg Fair went far and wide, drawing more than 500,000 visitors -- an all-time high attendance record.

Exhibitor interest in this year's livestock competition was the largest in the fair's history. The barns were filled to capacity and 250 potential entries had to be turned away. The capacity fill is a pleasant accomplishment after a couple bad years when Avian flu and a viral swine epidemic left the pig and fowl barns noticably empty.

The grand champion market steer, a spooky Angus crossbred steer brought its owner, 10-year-old Kyle Hummel of Sunbury, $3540 at the Thursday night beef sale. Spookie, which placed first in its middleweight class was purchased by Hoss Steak House, Duncansville, for $3.00 a pound.

Reserve grand champion honors went to a Black Angus exhibited by Eddie Chapman, Benton. Chapman's steer, weighing 1228 pounds, placed first in the heavyweight class and sold for $1.25 a pound to Pen-Col Farms, Millville.

Doug Marquart of Hughesville, exhibited the first place middleweight steer and Chad Creveling of Stillwater, showed the first place lightweight steer. Marquart also placed first in junior showman competition while Cathy Murry, Muncy, took top honors in senior division.

The 33 steers entered in 4H competition were sold Thursday night in the arena on the fairgrounds.

In the lamb competition, Todd Laudenslager, Dalmatia, showed the grand champion market lamb. The heavyweight sold for $5.10 a pound to John Fritz, Sunset Ice Cream who donated it back to 4-H and FFA for resale. Laudenslager's other entries also took first place in the pen of lambs class.

Kyle Brown, Klingerstown, showed reserve champion lamb. It also placed first in the middleweight class. James Kodick, Beaver Springs, took first place in lightweight and Duane Bassett, Sunbury, took first in light heavyweight. Senior showman honors went to Matt Zerby, Beavertown, while Troy Laudenslager took top honors in the junior showman class.

On Thursday, 56 exhibitors gathered in the cattle arena for the 4H Dairy Cattle Show.

Exhibiting grand and reserve champion winners in their breed division were:

- Ayrshire- Bradley Shultz, Danville, Grand and reserve.
- Brown Swiss- Frank Miller, Tamaqua, grand champion and Kurt Brown, Klingerstown, reserve grand champion.
- Guernsey- Brenda Maslock, Danville, grand champion and Susan Maslock, Danville, reserve grand champion.
- Holstein- Ben Wolff, Millville, grand champion and Carey Ann Jurbala, Orangeville, reserve grand champion.
- Jersey- Amy Hackett, Bloomsburg, grand and reserve grand champion.

In the colored dairy competition, Wm. and Carl Sandel of Danville exhibited the grand champion and reserve grand champion Ayrshire females. In the Brown Swiss, Frank Miller, Tamaqua, showed the grand champion female. Kenneth Smith and Arthur Wolfe, Middleburg, took reserve champion honors. Top Guernsey honors went to Albert and Marian Hack, Berwick, Brenda Maslock, Danville, showd reserve champion female.

Franlo-Alken Farms, Bellefonte, received a special premier dairy

Kyle Hummel, 10, shows his grand champion steer. Kyle is a member of Indian Hills 4-H Club. His 1180-pound steer was bought by Hoss Steak House, Duncansville, for $3.00 a pound.

Todd Laudenslager, Dalmatia, holds his grand champion lamb which was bought by John Fritz, Sunset Ice Cream, Williamsport for $5.10 a pound. Tammie Boyer, Lamb and Wool Princess looks on.

Zane, Regina and Drew Bagley with their winning team of Belgians.

In this, their first year at Bloomsburg and only their second year of competing, the Bagleys have captured the lightweight draft-horse pulling win with his 3200-pound Belgians.

Animal exhibitors at Bloomsburg were treated to a hoedown featuring a 115-pound sausage patty donated by Hatfield Quality Meats. Here, cooks turn the super pattie.

Introducing the new

MAGNUM 7120

And the first all-new tractors from Case IH

Case IH put more into the new MAGNUM tractor line than any farm tractors developed in over twenty years. Here's why you'll get more out of it:

MAGNUM means more. Outstanding field performance from a new 505 cubic inch turbocharged engine with reserve power. MAGNUM power. The MAGNUM tractor's powershift puts 18-speeds of shift-on-the-go workpower at your fingertips — standard. And only MAGNUM tractors offer a full powershift creeper transmission with six additional speeds from .5 to 2.1 mph... for more control and performance. MAGNUM performance.

The MAGNUM tractor's new larger cab has 48 square feet of window area...virtually unobstructed visibility... more seating comfort. MAGNUM comfort.

It all adds up: The Case IH MAGNUM 7120 tractor sets new standards for the 150 hp (112 kW) class... and for you. See us for details.

breeder award. They also took reserve champion junior award with Franlo-Alken Karen.

The grand champion Holstein bull was shown by Ralph M. Sands of Wyoming. Triple Sandsdale Warden, a senior yearling was sired by Hilltopwasper Elevation Warden and Dam was Excellent C. Don Bey Susan.

Siblings did well in the swine competition as several sets placed first in their class.

Terry Bennecoff, Kutztown, had the champion Berkshire sow and boar while brother Todd had reserve champion. The placings were the same for the Hampshires with Terry showing the champion and Todd the reserve champion. Todd also presented the champion and reserve champion in the sow and litter class.

The Chester White champion was presented by Mark Lazarus of Germansville while his brother Scott copped the reserve championship. Grant A. Lazarus of Gremansville exhibited the champion and reserve in the Landrace class.

The hoedown banquet was lip-smacking good with crowd-pleasing food such as baked beans, potato chips, and ice cream.

Calvin H. Lazarus & Sons of Whitehall had the champion and reserve champion Durocs, and Less and the Lazarus brothers of Germansville showed champion and reserve spotted swine.

The Yorkshire champions were owned by Busy Acre Farm in Whitehall.

The 4H horse and pony clubs had their mounts stabled on the fair grounds throughout the week. This exhibition was a popular attraction, especially on the occasions when the group traveled en masse to the arena to exercise their animals.

Draft horse pulling competition on Friday attracted competitors with their multi-ton entrants from many eastern states and from places as far west as Michigan. The yearly purse runs over $2000 for this event.

This year 10 teams competed in the light weight division (under 3200 lbs. per team) and 12 teams in the heavy weight (over 3200 lbs.).

Winners in the two divisions pulled record pulls for the fair competition, 7800 pounds in the light weight and 9200 in the heavy.

Livestock Superintendent, John Giger (who can be seen almost anywhere and anytime in the livestock area) was pleased to announce a recognition celebration to exhibitors. Because of the admirable effort put forth by animal exhibitors year after year, this year they were treated to a dinner-dance "hoedown" in the arena. The treat was sponsored by Hatfield Quality Meat, Stromanns Bakery, Sunshine Ice Cream, Robert Brown's Catering Service, Farmer's Coop, Catawissa Bottling and Bloomsburg Fair Association.

The banquet featured a 115-pound sausage pattie that donator Hatfield Quality Meats grilled over an open barbecue pit. The pattie represents a half a dressed hog. Stromann's buns sandwiched the quarter pound serving, while Brown's Catering provided baked beans, Catawissa Bottling and Farmer's Coop supplied the soft drinks and milk and Sunset Ice Cream served up dessert. Potato chips were donated anonymously and the Bloomsburg Fair Association provided George Wolf and band for dancing. The 500 diners were serenaded by Vaughn Mervine who provided organ music as a gesture of goodwill.

PA Horses Trot Off With Blue Ribbons In Hitch And Paso Fino Contest

HARRISBURG — A Centre County exhibitor who is an old hand at collecting blue ribbons and an 11-year-old girl from Northumberland County shared the spotlight in the opening hitch-horse competition at the 31st annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

John Cole of Centre Hall, who won most of the awards in the 1985 and 1986 competition, got off to an early start by capturing the six-horse hitch event again this year. The prize apparently puts Cole first in line for the honor of driving Pennsylvania's Governor Robert P. Casey and Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff and their wives into the main arena to open the 1988 Farm Show on January 10. Cole drove the carriage that carried the dignitaries at the last Farm Show.

In the youth cart division, Stacey Rovenolt, the 11-year-old from Turbotville, directed one of her father's Percherons through the required driving and backing maneuvers on the way to her blue ribbon.

Later, Stacey's father Alfred Ravenolt held the reins as the family captured second place in the mares team competition. Knapp Percherons of Findley, Ohio, won the blue ribbon in that event and was runnerup to the Rovenolts in the youth cart class.

Mason Klinck of Temple, NH, showed the winning junior team and finished second to Cole in the six-horse competition.

Pennsylvanians also dominated much of the spirited competition in the Paso Fino Show claiming three of the five ribbons in the classic Fino championships. This marks the first year the Paso Finos have exhibited at the Livestock Expo.

In first place was "Centinella La Estrella," exhibited by Zona Butler of Lemont Furnace, Fayette County, while "Mils Fuegos Del Prado" and "Marqurita Del Prado" won second and fourth places respectively for Ar Glatfelter of Dallastown, York County.

"La Brisa," exhibited by Alex Docktor of Sayre, Bradford County, was first in the Paso pleasure mare class, and Glatfelter's "Sonrio De Verde" claimed the blue ribbon in the Paso trail division.

York County Farms Take Honors In Appaloosa Judging

HARRISBURG — The Appaloosa Horse Club's nationally approved show was held at the Farm Show Complex in conjunction with the 31st annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition, with 100 entries competing for premiums and prestige. It was a double-pointed show, so two sets of results, cast by different judges, were posted.

Judges James Nance of Oklahoma and Gene Carr of South Dakota both agreed on the champion stallions and geldings, but had differing opinions when it came to the mares.

"Impulsive Flower," a four-year-old stallion owned by Guither's Stoney Acres of York Haven, York County, was declared the grand champion stallion of the show by both judges. The reserve champion stallion, a yearling colt named "A Ultimate Choice," was owned by Tom Soboleski and John Gibbons of Findley Lake, NY.

According to both judges, the grand champion gelding was "Interest Free," a yearling owned by Catherine and Jim Jaton of Fulton, NY. The reserve grand champion gelding, "Lins Disco Dandy," is a yearling owned by Sylvia Haines of Linwood, MD.

Judge Carr declared "Skips Gal Mindy," a two-year-old owned by Marilyn Eaves of Branch Port, NY, the grand champion mare and "Exclusive Goldie" the reserve grand champion mare for Charles Dickey of York Haven, York County. Judge Nance felt differently about the situation, and gave "Exclusive Goldie," a four-year-old, the honors for champion mare, with the reserve champion ribbon going to "Skips Gal Mindy."

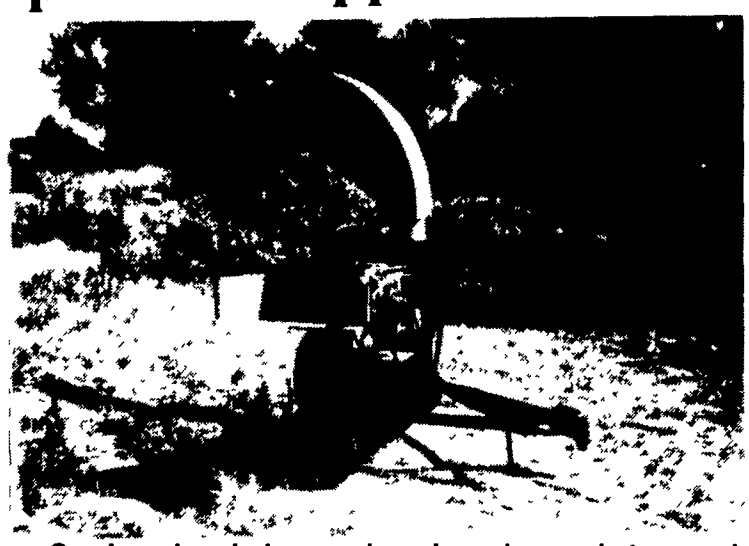
Sundance Improves Chipper/Grinder

Sundance announces a new improved version of the very versatile "Little Beaver" Chipper and "Mini Tub" Grinder. The product has application in agricultural, landscaping, brush clearing, home owner and other commercial markets and is available in both P.T.O. and engine drive models.

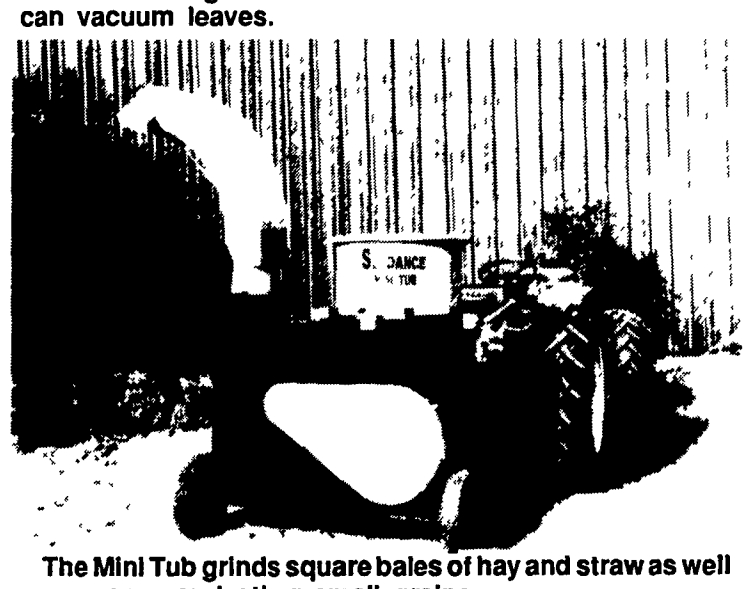
It's a brush and dry wood chipper, shredder, hay and feed grinder, bedding and mulch chopper, ear corn and grain grinder and vacuum cleaner all in one machine.

The basic machine is the same for both grinding and chipping operations. You simply change the "Little Beaver" input chipper head to the "Mini Tub" grinder head and easily change from grinding braches up to 3.5" in diameter to grinding straw for mulching or bedding. Mulched straw can be placed on the ground right where the operator wants it by utilizing the long flexible hose attachment. The hose can also be used to vacuum leaves etc. into the grinding chamber area and then discharged into a trailer for disposal. The "Mini Tub" grinder will grind square bales of hay and straw at a rate of up to 4 ton per hour. The "Mini Tub" will also grind ear corn and other small grains at the rate of up to 250 bushels per hour.

For more information contact Ryder Supply Co., P.O. Box 219, 539 Falling Springs Rd., Chambersburg, PA 17201, 717-263-9111.



Sundance's grinders work on branches and straw and can vacuum leaves.



The Mini Tub grinds square bales of hay and straw as well as ear corn and other small grains.

Automatic Now Selling Two-Stage Roller Mills

CHAMBERSBURG — Automatic announces a line of two-stage roller mills for commercial use, according to distributor Ryder Supply. Mills are designed for heavy-duty use with two sets of rolls mounted over and under. The top rolls are coarse-groove and the bottom rolls are fine-groove to provide maximum control over uniformity of particle size, no matter what grain is being processed. Mills are available in four sizes to produce 500, 1,000, 2,000 or 3,000 bushels per hour. Big diameter shafts, oversize bearings and deep-grooved rolls are designed for trouble-free operation. Multiple V-belt drive provides smooth, positive power. Mills are equipped with quick-change rolls which can be changed in a matter of minutes.

Treat For Quackgrass In Fall For Maximum Control: Monsanto

Recent studies on the growth patterns of quackgrass show that fall is an excellent time to treat to get maximum control, says Tom Larsen, weed control specialist for Monsanto Company.

According to Larsen, research shows a single application of a translocating herbicide in the fall not only provides immediate control of quackgrass plants but gives up to 85 percent control two cropping seasons later.

"That can be a great asset to farmers who have had to use high rates of atrazine and heavy tillage every spring to control quackgrass," Larsen says. "Add to that the benefit of getting a headstart on spring work, the cropping flexibility offered by using less atrazine and a no-risk quackgrass control guarantee offered by Monsanto, and fall application becomes an option that's hard to ignore," Larsen says.

The guarantee program promises that growers who spray Ranger herbicide according to label directions this fall will have 85 percent control (of the quackgrass that is sprayed) during the '88 and '89 cropping seasons. If the fall application should fail to work, Monsanto will replace the Ranger for any follow-up treatments necessary in the spring prior to planting. The guarantee applies only to acres that are in annual cropping rotations.

Fall is a very good time to control quackgrass with Ranger herbicide, Larsen explains, because at that time of year most quackgrass plants will be emerged. Nearly all the rhizomes and a good portion of the viable seeds in the soil will have sprouted tops. Spraying at that time will enable the herbicide to be carried by the plants' vascular system into virtually all the roots, giving nearly 100 percent kill of tops and rhizomes.

Fall is also the time that quackgrass is storing up nutrients to survive the winter and spraying at that time ensures good movement of the herbicide into the plant's root system for complete kill.

"Quackgrass control is essential for top yields," the weed specialist explains. "It can mean up to an additional 10 bushels of corn per acre and increased tonnage and protein content in alfalfa."

Full treatment with a translocating herbicide also eliminates the problem of atrazine carryover when rotating to forage crops. Since quackgrass will not be a problem for two seasons, there is no need to use high rates of atrazine.

Fall treatment can also be fitted around other activities. Quackgrass is active at lower temperatures and continues growing after the first frost. So long as 50 percent of the quackgrass plants are still green they can be treated with good results, according to Larsen.

Controlling Arthropods In The Hen House

BY LISA HAMM

LANCASTER — There are bugs, and then there are bugs. In high-rise hen houses, the undesirable bugs are manure-breeding flies, hide beetles, and mealworms, while the good guys are predaceous mites, hister beetles, and parasitic wasps. The trick for poultry farmers is to kill the former and encourage the growth of the latter.

Dr. Clarence Collison, a Penn State extension entomologist, discussed methods of controlling arthropods in hen houses at a poultry health seminar on Monday night. Current pest-control measures rely almost exclusively on pesticides, he said. Since pests quickly develop a resistance to insecticides and improper use of pesticides results in killing beneficial arthropods, Collison suggested integrated pest management as an alternative method. This method involves combining cultural, biological and chemical control tactics.

Manure management is crucial in controlling pests. Because temperature and moisture are key factors in breeding insects — adult flies like warm, moist manure — it is necessary to have adequate ventilation and a daily routine that includes checking the manure pit for leaks. A high-rise hen house with a dry pit and scrapper boards that push manure into cones will have only one place to watch for breeding flies: the ridge crest where fresh manure drops, said Collison.

Many farmers clean out their pits as soon as they notice a fly problem. While this will clear out the current pest population, within two days, it provides the ideal condition for fly breeding. In addition, just as it wipes out the harmful

Eby Buys Grand Champion At Eastern National

The 1987 Eastern National Livestock Show Grand Champion Market Steer was purchased by M.H. Eby, Inc., of Blue Ball, Pennsylvania. Eby paid $1.05 per pound for this 1395 lb. Simmental - Angus Chi Cross steer.

The Eastern National Livestock Show attracted 10,000 people from Maine to Florida and as far west as Indiana. Over ⅓ of the exhibitors were first timers. It is one of the few remaining shows that offers a special sale for 4-H and FFA members.

Eby manufactures aluminum livestock trailers and bodies and service states east of the Mississippi. Their commitment to producing an excellent product is reflected in the fact that their business continues to grow in a sluggish farm economy.

Eby also is a dealer for Timpte trailers, the largest manufacture of grain hoppers in the U.S.

USDA Reduces Milk Support Price

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Effective Oct. 1, the support price for milk will be $11.10 per hundredweight, a reduction of 25 cents, Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng announced today.

Lyng also said the 25-cent-per-hundredweight assessment on dairy producers for milk they market for commercial use will no longer be imposed after Sept. 30. The producer assessment has helped to partially fund the Dairy Termination Program.

The new support price could remain in effect until Jan. 1, 1990. However, it may be increased or decreased 50-cents-per-hundredweight from that in effect on Jan. 1, 1988, 1989 and/or 1990 on the basis of the Department of Agriculture's estimates of net surplus purchases of dairy products under the milk price support program for the respective calendar years 1988, 1989 and 1990.

These actions are mandated by the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended by the Food Security Act of 1985, Lyng said.

The 15-cent-per-hundredweight assessment for promotion and research efforts approved by producers in a recent referendum will continue.

The $11.10 support price is for milk with a milkfat content of 3.67 percent - the national average - and compares with $10.82-per-hundredweight for milk with a milkfat content of 3.5 percent.

The price support program for milk is carried out through Commodity Credit Corporation purchases of butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk. As a result of the reduction in the support price for milk, purchase prices of both butter and nonfat dry milk will be reduced 2 cents per pound and purchase prices of cheese will be reduced 2½ cents per pound. The new purchase prices, per pound, will be $1.3575 for butter, $0.7675 for nonfat dry milk, $1.20 for block Cheddar cheese and $1.1575 for barrel cheese.

Supplementing Natural Colostrum Helps Prevent Disease

MINNEAPOLIS, MN — An increasing number of dairymen are finding that it pays to supplement the colostrum newborn calves receive from their mothers. Fall weather, with its warm days and cool nights that predisposes calves to disease organisms that cause respiratory problems and scours, makes that payoff even greater.

According to researchers in calf management, the wide swings in temperatures common in the fall place extra stress on newborn calves and makes their systems more vulnerable to diseases. Therefore it is more important than at any other time of the year for calves to establish a strong passive immunity immediately after birth.

Calves normally receive the ingredients they need to establish passive immunity from the immunoglobulins in first-milk colostrum. However, as a number of dairymen and researchers are discovering, much first-milk colostrum doesn't contain sufficient immunoglobulins to establish this passive immunity.

Perhaps the most dramatic recent information to surface on the subject of colostrum quality was a University of Florida study. In that study, researchers tested 2,045 first-milk colostrum samples in one commercial herd from 1983 to 1985. The results showed that only 20 percent of the samples contained adequate immunoglobulins.

What can dairymen do to make sure their newborn calves get adequate quality colostrum?

As mentioned before, many dairymen are supplementing the colostrum produced by their cows. Many of these dairymen are using a product called Colostrx® colostrum supplement recently licensed by USDA as the first bovine whey-derived product ever licensed by that agency. Produced by Protein Technology, Inc., in Minneapolis, Minn., Colostrux supplement is made by concentrating the immunoglobulins in cheese whey. The powered product is designed to be mixed with 1½ quarts of milk and fed to the calf as a one-time feeding within 10 hours of birth.

Doelman, a Washington dairyman, began using Colostrux supplement shortly after it was licensed in late February. He feeds it to about 10 calves per month in his 500-cow herd.

"We didn't know what to do," he says, referring to the lack of sufficient quality colostrum uncovered by his testing. "Our cows

(Turn to Page D9)

Discoveries the last few years of high incidences of inadequate quality colostrum in many dairy cows have prompted an increasing number of dairymen to feed a colostrum supplement to newborn calves. Many are using Colostrx® supplement to help ensure their calves receive adequate levels of immunoglobulins. Making sure calves receive adequate immunoglobins within hours of birth is especially important during rapid temperature changes in fall and spring.

Controlling Arthropods

insects, it also eliminates the beneficial arthropods. Collison recommended that, where possible, cleaning houses in sections so that there would always be predatory insects around.

Collison also pointed out that the conditions that discourage pest growth are the exact ones that create an environment where the natural pest predators and parasites can flourish.

Chemical controls are often necessary for a successful pest-control program. The farmer should monitor his pest populations on a regular basis in order to know when to use pesticides, where to apply them, which one to use and how much to use, said Collison. It is important to know where to use insecticides because indiscriminant use of them will destroy predators as well as pests, he added.

Applying a pesticide to the manure ridge crest will kill adult flies without harming predators, many of which live just below the crest.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

Northumberland Nutrient Demo Meeting

SUNBURY — The Northumberland County Conservation District and the Cooperative Extension Service will cosponsor a nutrient demonstration meeting on Wednesday, October 21 from 7:00-8:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at Robert and Gary Truckenmiller's farm, one mile east of Dewart.

All farmers attending the meeting will receive a free copy of the state's new eight-part manure management manual. Special editions are available for dairy, swine, poultry, beef, and veal operations.

Ben Zimmer, nutrient management specialist with the Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation, will speak on the economics of on-farm nutrient management. Norman Conrad, county agent, will present a program on manure spreader calibration.

George Phillips of the conservation district staff will review the results of nutrient management experiments conducted by the Truckenmillers. The Truckenmillers experimented with different rates of manure and fertilizer application on one of their corn fields this past summer. Phillips will discuss the impact of various nutrient application rates on crop production.

Before the meeting begins, farmers are invited to come and tour DER's new mobile nutrient laboratory. The lab will be at the Truckenmiller farm starting at 5:30 p.m. The laboratory is equipped to test water for nitrates and to analyze manure for nitrogen, phosphate, and potash content. Farmers who would like to have their water tested for nitrates are asked to bring a water sample to the lab at least one hour before the meeting begins.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting by the conservation district. More information on the meeting can be obtained by calling the conservation district office, 988-4224.

Natural Colostrum

are on a nutritional management program and everything was supposed to be good. I was very happy to see that someone came out with a product that we could use to supplement our colostrum program."

Like a lot of dairymen, Doelman tried freezing colostrum that his tests showed was of good quality. However, "it seemed like it always ended up in a flop," he says. Now, he stores good quality colostrum in the refrigerator, but he can only keep it for two days.

From an individual-calf performance standpoint, Doelman has had equal results using Colostrux supplement or good quality colostrum. However, his overall success at raising calves is better now because he doesn't have to feed marginal quality colostrum.

Although supplementing colostrum won't prevent all the problems newborn calves experience as a result of fall weather, it can give them a better chance of combating those problems. Increasingly, dairymen are recognizing the importance of assuring calves establish a strong passive immunity immediately after birth, say dairy specialists. And knowing that they've received adquate immunoglobulins is key to that assurance.

USDA Grants Rights To Seed Producers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued certificates of protection to developers of 11 new varieties of seed-reproduced plants, including corn, cotton, pea, soybean, and tobacco.

Kenneth H. Evans, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said developers of the new varieties will have the exclusive right to reproduce, sell, import, and export their products in the United States for 18 years. Certificates of protection are granted after a review of the breeders' records and claims that each new variety is novel, uniform, and stable.

The following varieties have been issued certificates of protection:

— the 779 variety of corn, developed by the Northrup King Co., Minneapolis, Minn.;

— the GSC 27 and GSC 71 Plus varieties of cotton, developed by the Agrigenetics Corp. doing business as GroAgri Seed Co., Lubbock, Tex.;

— the Tamcot GCNH variety of cotton, developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, College Station, Tex.;

— the Tifcot 56 variety of cotton, developed by the University of Georgia Agricultural Experiment Station, Tifton, Ga.;

— the Gain variety of pea, developed by the Asgrow Seed Co., Kalamazoo, Mich.;

— the Gnome 85 and Ripley varieties of soybean, developed by the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Ohio State University, and USDA-ARS, Wooster, Ohio;

— the K394 and K317 varieties of tobacco, developed by the Northrup King Co., Minneapolis, Minn.;

— the Speight G-108 variety of tobacco, developed by Speight Seed Farms Inc., Winterville, N.C.

Certificates of protection for the Tamcot GCNH and the Tifcot 56 varieties of cotton, the Gnome 85 and Ripley varieties of soybean, and the Speight G-108 variety of tobacco are being issued to be sold by variety name only as a class of certified seed, and to conform to the number of generations specified by the owner.

The plant variety protection program is administered by AMS and provides marketing protection to developers of new and distinctive seed-reproduced plants ranging from farm crops to flowers.

Weekly Cattle Slaughter

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An estimated 4,900 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally-inspected plants during the week ending Sept. 5 as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1, 1986 through Sept. 5, 1987 is an estimated 1,222,500 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. Cumulative purchases through Sept. 19 total 438,270,160 pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1, 1986 through Sept. 19, 1987 totaled an estimated 65,291 head.

The testimonials of these dairymen and others like them are proof that IsoPlus pays. Need more reasons to try IsoPlus? Ask your feed supplier. Or call Eastman toll-free 800-EASTMAN (800-327-8626).
